GHENT AZALEAS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

So named from being grown in enormous quantities by the Belgian florists for export, although natives of China and Japan. Potted now, and readily had from our home nurserymen, Ghent Azaleas are splendid, first for the greenhouse, and then for permanently planting out in the shrubbery face or as a bed to themselves. Varying in colour, the scarlet of the Admiral de Ruyter on through the sulphur-yellow to the pure white of the fragrant viscosa floribunda, they are very charming. The above are very hardy, distinctly deciduous, and supplementary to our spring display in the greenhouse, whereas the evergreen Indian Azaleas may be regarded as permanent plants for it according to the owner's desire and taste.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN DULL.

GUINNESS LOWER.

The new account opened in gloomy fashion on Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday. War Loan Assented was the weakest spot on the list, and marked a fall of 1 1/16 to 96⅝. Free State Funds were quite steady, and Land Bonds marked at 104½, which just allows for the dividend deduction.

Banks were well supported, and the price changes were small, the largest being a fall of ⅜ in Bank Stock to 274½.

Rails were weak, Northern Ord. falling 1 to 4, and Southern Ord. 1/16 to 5 1/16. Dublin Tram Pref. repeated 170s.

Another shilling was knocked off the price of Guinness at 80s. 3d., and Power Pref. suffered to the same extent at 14s. 6d. All Cables and Wireless issues were weak, and gave may sharply, the biggest drop being 6⅜ in the Pref. Stock at 76⅜. Alliance Gas repeated 11. Todd Burns Ord. rose 2s. to 3s.

The Industrial section was spotty. A number of shares were marked ex. div., and the principal movement was a rise of a point in Civil Service Building to 37. Burke Debs. rose ¼ to 7¼, and the other price changes were small. Harrods Ord. came to business at 59s.

LONDON IRREGULAR.

WEST AFRICAN GOLD SHARES BOOMING.

Principal interest in the London Stock markets yesterday was directed to the West African Gold shares, where almost boom-like conditions prevailed. Business was on an active scale, and transactions commenced at an early hour. Few sellers were in evidence, and as a consequence only a small amount of stock was available. Business became difficult, and prices advanced strongly throughout the list. In other directions, irregular conditions ruled, and, although bright features were not entirely lacking, the balance of movements was again against holders. British Funds were an exceptionally weak market, reflecting the uncertainties regarding the War debt position, and, although the close was above the worst, further substantial recessions were shown at the end. The industrial sections attracted only a moderate amount of business, and the general trend of values was against holders. Tobaccos continued out of favour, and Breweries were marked off, Guinness going off rather sharply, while the Miscellaneous were also scaled down. Selling was again in progress in Cables and Wireless, and values receded sharply at first. Later fresh support was forthcoming, and values rallied appreciably, the initial losses being made good. The trans-Atlantic descriptions disclosed a firm front on the latest advices from New York. Elsewhere, Oils displayed strength, while Mines, apart from West Africans, disclosed a firmer tone in the afternoon on strong Paris support.

Among British Funds, Consols 2½ per cent. fell away rapidly and closed no better than 71½, or 2 points below Saturday's finish, while the 4 per cent. lost a further ½ to 105½. Funding Loan and the 3½ per cent. Conversion Loan were each ⅞ down, and Victory Bonds shed a point, while War Loan 5 per cent. Assented lost ¾ and Local Loans ⅝. India Stocks were also depressed, losses of from a point to 1½ points being general, while Irish Free State Land Bonds were quoted ex div. at 104. Among Foreign Government Stocks, Greek Sevens at 32 were 3 points easier, while Belgian Sevens and Japan Sixes, 1924, each dropped a point. Brazilians and Chinese showed fractional recessions, and French Fours lost a trifle. British Rails, although neglected, managed to preserve a steady tone, and on balance the few movements recorded were favourable to holders. Excepting Canadian Pacifics, which at 21¼ were ¼ above the week-end level, Colonial and Foreign Rails were not materially altered. American Rails presented a firmer front, Union Pacific gaining 4 points and Atchison finishing 2 points better.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

CABLE STOCKS FLUCTUATE.

Dull conditions prevailed when dealings started for the new account in the Industrial Market yesterday. Interest seemed to be lacking, and, with few exceptions, the majority of movements continued adverse to holders. Cables and Wireless stocks were subject to additional selling pressure, noticeably the Pref., but they rallied from the lowest. The trans-Atlantic counters opened with a firm appearance, but in the late dealings prices slipped back. Radios were a weak spot on reports of unfavourable developments. Breweries generally lost ground, particularly Guinness.

After a firm opening, the trans-Atlantic issues developed an irregular tendency. Afternoon advices from New York were satisfactory at first, but selling orders were received later, and the market finished with an uncertain appearance. Radios relapsed from 11½ to 8¾, while Steels gave way from 55½ to 53½, Drug from 53¼ to 51¾, Nickels from 13¼ to 12⅞, and Brazilian Traction from 13¼ to 12⅞. Hydros, however, were fairly well maintained around 9⅞. "Emmies" hardened at 12s. 6d., only to come on offer eventually at 12s. 3d.

Cables and Wireless stocks suffered another setback, but closed above the lowest after rather sharp fluctuations. At one time the Pref. dipped to 76½, rallied to 77½, finishing with a net loss of 1½ at 77. The "A" Ord. fell to 26¾, recovered to 28¾, and closed at 28, with the "B" Ord. finally 12, after being 11¾ and 12¾.

An exception to the general trend was provided by Iron, Coal and Steel descriptions. Weardale Defd. further improved to 21s. 9d., and moderate support was received for Staveleys, Amagamated Anthracite, and Dorman Long.

Motors gave another mixed display. Austins, Dennis and Leylands improved slightly, but Rovers, Thomas Tilling and Rolls-Royce lost ground, the last-named closing no better than 41s. 9d.

Renewed buying orders were received for American Celanese Common, which finished 1/16 to the good at 3 1/16. Canadian Celanese hardened to 3 1/16, but the rest of the Rayon issues seemed undecided. British Celanese Ord. eased to 8s. 7½d. Courtaulds held at 31s. 7½d., with the Pref. closing rather buyers at 21s. 4½d.

Textiles seemed uncertain in their movements, and finished slightly easier for choice. Sewing Cottons receded to 39s. 9d., Fine Spinners to 18s. 6d., with J. and P. Coats quoted at 45s. 4½d. ex div. A little support was given to Bradford Dyers.

In the Provision and Catering group, both Unilever at 31s. 6d., and Unilever N.V. at 32s., were marked ex div. J. Lyons also went ex div. at 5⅝. Tate and Lyles attracted fair support, and left off 6d. to the good at 57s. 3d.

Breweries generally remained out of favour. Guinness reflected the Irish situation and finished 2s. down at 80s. 6d. Allsopps, Barclay Perkins, Bass Ratcliff, Benskins, Courage Ord., Distillers, Ind. Coope and Watney Def., all shed a few pence.

The Tobacco leaders continued dull. Carreras "A" dwindled to 5⅝, with the "B" shares on offer at 14s. 9d. "Bats" lost the turn at 5, and "Imps" at 4 11/16.

Changes in the Miscellaneous section again proved generally unfavourable to holders. Dunlops and Chemicals reflected the prevailing dulness, the former shedding 4½d. to 18s. 10½d., while the latter gave way 3d. to 23s. 1½d., and the Deferred closed the turn easier at 6s. 1½d. Declines of a few pence were registered in Borax Def., British Aluminium, Salt Union, Spillers, British Oilcakes, and Pinchin Johnsons. Triplex Glass were quoted ex return of 10s. capital, and were finally quoted around 32s. In other directions, James Finlays were a weak spot, losing 1s. 9d. to 46s. 3d.

In the Swedish group, Match "B" left off 1s. to the good at 16s., although Separators sagged to 2 11/16.

RUBBER SHARES NEGLECTED.

Trading in the Rubber share market yesterday was again almost non-existent, yet share values were generally well maintained. Eastern Trust weakened at 12s. 6d., against 13s. 9d. on Saturday, and General Ceylon and United Sua Betong lost ground, but Anglo-Dutch, Malayalam, Rubber Trust, and Vallambrosa all showed fractional improvements. Fair support was accorded in the raw material department, and prices were inclined to strengthen. Spot and December went from 2 11/32d. to 2⅜d. per pound, with January to March closing at 2 13/32d. per pound and April to June at 2 15/32d. per pound. In accordance with expectations, London stocks of rubber were reduced by 576 tons, whilst Liverpool stocks showed a reduction of 306 tons.

OIL SHARES FIRM.

Interest in the Oil Share market yesterday centred almost entirely on international counters, such as Royal Dutch, Shells and the Eagle issues. Locally it cannot be said that there was much improvement in the volume of transactions, but generally a satisfactory tendency prevailed. Quite a good demand existed from Paris and Amsterdam for Royal Dutch and Shells, the weakness of sterling favouring continental purchases. Despite the continued apathy here, both of the general public and professional operators, prices were not slow to respond to the buying on continental account. In other descriptions there was very little business passing.

LONDON MINING MARKET STEADY.

WEST AFRICAN ISSUES PROMINENT.

On the whole the tendency at the opening of the new account in the Mining Market yesterday was not unsatisfactory, but in general there was not a great deal of business in progress. But for all practical purposes there was only one department in the market, West Africans again receiving attention to the virtual exclusion of all others. The turnover in these was enormous, one dealer stating that he had never had a busier day in his long association with West Africans. Trading was in thousands of shares at the time, partly, of course, on account of the small prices at which most issues stand. The early burst of activity was followed by a quieter period, when the accumulation of public orders received over the week-end had been carried out. With this lull professional operators began to snatch quick profits, and prices dropped back. Buyers soon came forward at the lower levels, and quotations moved ahead again. Business in Kaffirs was comparatively quiet, and there was no decided tendency. Early advices received from the Cape were satisfactory, but very few buying orders reached this side from Johannesburg. Paris gave a little support to the market, but local interest was diverted largely to the West African group. The De Beers issues were firm in sympathy with Paris, the Deferred rising ⅛ to 4⅝ and the Preferred ⅛ to 7⅝. Little of interest took place in the Rhodesian department. The price of copper rose to £31 18s. 9d. per ton, but Rhodesians were very quiet. The price of tin was unchanged at £154 per ton, but, with business of small proportions, the shares sagged in one or two instances. Others were quiet and little changed. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

JOHN POWER AND SON'S PROPOSED REDUCTION OF CAPITAL.

The directors wish to lay before the shareholders certain proposals which would, in their opinion, be for the benefit of the company, if carried into effect. The business of the company has been very considerably affected in recent years through heavy taxation and other causes, and the directors are of opinion that, in the interests of both the company and its shareholders, proposals should be laid before the shareholders for a reduction of the company's share capital, to effect the two-fold object of:—

(a) bringing the share capital down to a figure more closely approximating to present values of the company's assets;

(b) providing some relief from the severe burden imposed upon the company's resources by the cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. at present payable on the Preference Shares.

The present capital of the company is £800,000, divided into 400,000 Preference Shares of £1 each and 400,000 Ordinary Shares of £1 each. The whole of this capital has been issued, and is fully paid up. There are at present no Debentures or other charges on the company's assets.

The directors consider that the values of the "freehold and leasehold property, buildings and goodwill" and "plant, machinery, etc.," standing against these items in the balance sheet as of the 30th June, 1932, are to-day in excess of the realizable value under the conditions at present affecting the business of whiskey distilling generally, and that these values ought to be written down, and it is, in the opinion of the directors, becoming increasingly evident that the earning capacity of the company is not equal to the strain of providing the cumulative preference dividend (requiring an annual sum of £32,000, less income tax), if proper provision for depreciation, reserves, etc., is to be made in the future. The following figures taken from the published accounts of the company show the net profits of the company, after payment of income tax, for each of the past five years:—

" " 1930 ...	28,860	2	0
" " 1931 ...	26,339	15	0
" " 1932 ...	25,744	15	11

The directors, therefore, contemplate bringing forward a scheme for the reduction of the company's share capital in the following manner:—

(a) By reducing the 400,000 Ordinary Shares from £1 each to 10s. each, thus cancelling £200,000 of the company's ordinary capital.

(b) By paying off the whole of the 400,000 Preference Shares at par, by issuing to the holders thereof for each £1 Preference Share held, £1 of Debenture Stock of the company, carrying interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. This Debenture Stock of £400,000 will be a first charge upon the freehold and leasehold property and buildings of the company, and will also be a floating charge upon the general undertaking and all other property and assets of the company. These charges will be secured by a trust deed to be executed in favour of trustees for the Debenture Stock holders. The Debenture Stock or any part thereof may be redeemed by the company at par any time after the 1st January, 1940, on giving six months' previous notice. The interest on the Debentures will be payable half-yearly on the 1st January and 1st July in each year, and will run as from the date upon which the preference capital is paid off, dividends and interest being apportioned if necessary. The preference capital will then be cancelled.

This will enable the company to write down the values of the particular assets referred to above to figures more consistent with present values. The directors do not desire to incur the expense or proceed with the proposed scheme without some assurance that it will receive the necessary support of the shareholders, and accordingly shareholders are asked to signify their "approval" or "disapproval" not later than 30th November, 1932.

DEVELOPMENTS IN TRANSVAAL.

The Financial News Johannesburg Correspondent cables:—A Rand mining engineer, who has been investigating the gold occurrence in the Waterberg district of the Transvaal, states that the existence there of a gold belt over at least twenty miles, in a more or less East and West direction, has been definitely established. The problem to be solved is as to whether or not, over this very extensive area, there can be found sections that can be economically exploited. To this end work will be devoted to preliminary investigations. Meanwhile, the indications being of a favourable nature, the possibility is being discussed of the New Kleinfontein Co. obtaining a lease from the Government of an area, comprising six hundred claims, on the western boundary of the company's Apex section.

HEVEA TRUST TO RECONSTRUCT.

Accompanying the report for the year to June 30, 1932, of the Hevea Rubber Trust, Ltd., which shows a loss of £2,277, is a notice calling an extraordinary meeting to consider a scheme of reconstruction. Shareholders in the present company will have the right to subscribe for one share in the new company, credited with 17s. paid, for every two shares held. Debenture stockholders will be asked to forego all interest on the 7 per cent. Convertible Debenture Stock from December 31, 1931, to June 30, 1934. They will receive in exchange for each £100 Debenture Stock £117 10s. of new Stock, carrying interest at 7 per cent. per annum.

RADIO CONTROL TO PASS.

The United States Federal Court has signed the consent decree to the settlement reached in the suit brought against the Radio Corporation of America under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. Under the decree General Electric and Westinghouse Electric agree to dispose of half of their stockholdings of Radio Corporation within three months and the balance in three years. Pending these distributions the company will not exercise voting power. Officers and directors of the Electric Companies will withdraw from the Board of the Radio Corporation, and the Electric Companies undertake not to enter freely into the manufacture of radio devices for two and a half years after which unrestricted competition will be allowed to prevail. The Radio Corporation's floating debt of $18,000,000 to the Electric Companies is to be partly funded by $4,000,000 of ten years' debentures, and the balance cancelled in exchange for real property and new patent arrangements.

The Third Hussars, one of the oldest cavalry regiments in the British Army, reached Southampton yesterday from India and are going to York. With the exception of a few months before the Great War and a few months after, the regiment has not been at home since 1900. Immediately after the War the regiment was sent to Germany, then to Chanak, and later to Egypt and India.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Cures for Rheumatism : The Fingal Harriers : Parsifal's Swan. Silversmiths : In Moscow.

Parsifal's Swan.

A correspondent writes:—The passing reference to "swan-wafted Parsifal" in the Diary recently reminded me that the final scene of this famous opera, in which Parsifal sails away on the swan, has given rise to several good stories, apocryphal and otherwise. It is told of a famous tenor that, holding on to his fast note too long and rapturously, he did not notice that the stage hands had begun to draw the swan off the stage. Turning round, he discovered it just disappearing behind the scenery. He rose nobly to the occasion, however, and, turning to the audience, asked them: "Can you tell me if there is a later swan or will I have to walk?"

Another awkward situation arose when a member of a touring opera company rushed up to the manager one night just before the performance was due to begin. "Sorry, sir," he gasped; "but we can't give 'Parsifal' to-night. The moths have got at the swan!"

The Fingal Harriers.

To those of us who remember seeing the Fingal Harriers make merry at their annual dances in the old days at Malahide their reunion in the Gresham Hotel the other night came as an agreeable surprise. It was a revelation of the increased prosperity of this popular hunt; and in these hard times that is some consolation. That the Fingals have come on in the world is abundantly clear; and they seem to enjoy the friendship of the adjacent hunts of greater pretensions. In fact, the abundance of scarlet completely eclipsed the green and gold which is now recognised as the full evening dress of the members of this harrier hunt. The guests completely outshone their hosts. The white facings of the Wards and the Kildares were evident on all fronts of the entertainment, while the blue facings of the Meaths were particularly noticeable, and one or two scarlet coats sported the yellow facings of some other fox hunt. Strictly speaking, it is only within the last six or seven years that the Fingals adopted a full-dress hunting garb for the evening, and it was then that Mr. Alec Craigie Field, Master at the time, selected the green and gold.

An Interesting History.

The pack has an interesting history, but, perhaps, one of its most interesting Masters was Mr. Leslie O'Callaghan. He was the champion croquet player of the British Isles and an all-round sportsman. It was somewhere around the 1911 pre-war era that he hunted the Fingals, and when he performed the remarkable feat of winning all the races at the point-to-point he became the idol of every youth in North County Dublin. He rode his own six winners, and at this time he had his headquarters at Brackenstown, now the property of Mr. Harry Ussher, who trains there.

A Popular Hunt.

Another remarkable figure who hunted these harriers was Major Beamish. At the time he was in charge of the British Remounts at Lusk. The troubled times which prevailed then put a stop to his activities in the hunting field; for he was burned out at Lusk somewhere about 1921, after which he retired to Northern Ireland.

As masters and secretaries the Craigie family had a long association with the pack; so, too, had the Woods family, and this year Mr. Dick Cullen, a popular figure, is Master. The popularity of the Fingals is easy to understand. A day out with them is regarded as a good school for a young unhunted horse—a four years old, perhaps. Then the subscription of £5 makes membership within the reach of everybody keen to follow. As a rule, members of the Ward also pay a subscription to the Fingals.

Irish Silversmiths.

In view of the fact that in former days the art of the silversmith in Ireland was famous and widely sought, it is unfortunate that to-day there are only about half a dozen workshops turning out Irish silver worthy of our ancient tradition. The records of the Dublin Guild of Silversmiths are the most complete in the British Isles, only two books being lost. Previous to 1637 the records were kept by the Dublin Corporation, but from then onwards the Guild kept their own. After Dublin, Youghal claims to have had the earliest silversmiths. There are several pieces of early Youghal silver in existence, including those belonging to the Communion Plate of St. Mary's Collegiate Church, of which the oldest is a cup made in 1620 by John Sharp. An Apostle spoon of the same date, by Morish Lawless, was sold at Christie's in 1902. In the Augustinian Church in Dublin is to be seen the earliest specimen of Galway silver extant—a chalice made by Richard Joyce in 1648.

In 1631 the Mayor and Corporation of Cork received a charter granting them the same privileges as Youghal, but despite this, and the records which go back to 1656, the earliest piece of Cork silver available is the chalice of the White Knight of County Cork, made in 1662 by James Ridge. The earliest "sterling" mark on Cork silver appears in 1719. St. Patrick's Church, in that city, possesses two patens made by William Clarke about that date and stamped.

"Cures" for Rheumatism.

When I met a friend the other day who told me he had been cured of rheumatism, I began to wonder which of the many various and quaint remedies for this disease had done the trick. Some years ago, for instance, many people were to be seen wearing anti-rheumatic rings, which they were ready to assure you, not only cured the disease, but gave complete immunity so long as the ring was worn. Others carried, next to the skin, a small piece of coal in a cotton bag, which was supposed to have much the same effect. Sailors usually swear by the tarred rope cure for lumbago—that is to say, at the first sign of the complaint they tie a tarry string round the waist next the skin. My friend's remedy was an interesting one; it consisted in wearing a copper plate inside one heel and a zinc plate inside the other. I imagine, however, that these devices, together with the vibrators, pulsators and electric batteries which provided fortunes for their inventors, may, perhaps, be regarded as stages towards the ideal cure, when the patient will only have to persuade himself into the conviction that he has no rheumatism in order to get rid of the disease.

A Moscow Impression.

A friend who was in Moscow recently tells me that he found the Soviet capital different in nearly every respect from the other European cities that he had visited. There were crowded trams in the streets, but very few motor cars and no 'buses. No advertisements were to be seen, and there was no display of fashions in the shops; for the women appeared to wear mostly the same kind of dress—a plain blouse and skirt, with a kerchief wound round the head. Instead of advertisements, there were hundreds of educational posters and diagrams displayed everywhere. My friend, who could not read Russian, asked the interpreter who accompanied him to translate one of these notices, which seemed to be specially important, because it was to be seen in all the tram-cars and public buildings. He was informed that it meant: "Good Communists do not spit."

QUIDNUNC.

EARL OF SHREWSBURY IN ESTATE OFFICE.

TO GAIN EXPERIENCE IN MANAGEMENT.

The Earl of Shrewsbury has entered the offices of the Duchy of Cornwall, at Bath, to gain experience of estate management, and is likely to be connected with the offices for two or three years. With the experience which he is now obtaining he will eventually manage his own estate.

Lord Shrewsbury, who is premier earl on the roll in the Peerage of England and also Hereditary Lord High Steward of Ireland, is in his 18th year. He is the 21st of his line, having succeeded his grandfather in the family honours in 1921. His father, Viscount Ingestre, fell in the Great War in 1915.

Lord Shrewsbury is the head of one of the most ancient families in the peerage, a family which can claim descent from a period prior to the Conquest. Sir John Talbot, the first Earl—so created in 1442—was one of the greatest soldiers of his age. It is recorded that he won no fewer than 40 battles during warfare with France. The 12th Earl was a statesman of the reigns of William and Mary, Queen Anne and George the First, and filled some of the highest offices of State. He was at one and the same time Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Lord High Treasurer and Lord Chamberlain. The dukedom conferred upon him expired at his death.

MOUNTJOY SCHOOL.

The annual distribution of prizes to the pupils of Mountjoy School will be held in the Parochial Hall, George's place, Dublin, to-morrow, at 4 p.m. The Archbishop of Dublin will preside, and Senator Sir John Keane will give an address.

Judge R. Whitbourn Turner, of Westminster and Uxbridge County Courts, was found dead on Sunday in bed at his home at Stoke Poges, Bucks. He was sixty-five.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

WITHOUT PURGATIVES OR CALOMEL

and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of beans

If you are fed up and depressed, feel heavy-eyed in the morning and get the blues all day long, don't swallow a lot of fizzy drinks or harsh purgatives and expect them to make you feel fresh and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and that doesn't really get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. Your liver's chief job is to send two pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Consequently your stomach is filled with gas. You have a thick, bad taste in your mouth. Your breath is foul and blemishes often break out on your skin. You get headaches and feel rotten. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old Carters Brand Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile juice flowing freely and to make you feel right on top of the world. They contain harmless, gentle vegetable extracts and they are just wonderful when it comes to promoting the flow of bile.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carters Brand Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carters Brand Little Liver Pills on the package. Resent a substitute. Sold by all Chemists, 1/3 and 3/-.

CERVANTES AND THE RENAISSANCE.

TRINITY COLLEGE LECTURE.

The Provost (Dr. E. J. Gwynn) took the chair at the first of a series of lectures on Cervantes, which was given yesterday afternoon in Trinity College by Dr. Walter Starkie, F.,T.C.D.

Taking as his title "Cervantes and the Renaissance—The Humanist," Dr. Starkie quoted the judgment given by Hegel on the universality of "Don Quixote." What he admired in Cervantes was the strength of the individual character of Don Quixote and his resistance to all outward pressure. In his craziness he was always sure of himself, and sure of his cause.

The work was primarily a satire on romantic chivalry, charged through and through with irony, and thus different from Ariosto's "Orlando Furioso."

"Don Quixote" submitted the romances of chivalry to irony, but it was yet one of the strangest paradoxes in literature; for Cervantes in his literary opinions followed the Arcadian and pastoral conventions of his age, and prided himself more on his "Galatea" than on "Don Quixote."

The lecturer proceeded to explain the trend of Cervantes's mind, and the ideas which went to build up his style. Though he was not a philosopher or a scholar, he echoes through his works the opinions held by the great Italian humanists of the Renaissance. Humanism did not mean for him merely the study of Greek and Latin authors; it meant the valuation and exaltation of the human, of man and his reason. It was a new way of observing the world.

Cervantes was greatly influenced by Erasmus, and followed his theory that all human things had two aspects: reality depends on opinion, and we cannot be sure of any truth. Another author who profoundly influenced him was Castiglione, from whose book, "The Courtier," he drew his fundamental principle of the harmony of nature. Nature, according to him, has formed human beings and has placed in them virtues and defects which determine the life of each person. The struggle in Cervantes's mind between this conception of neo-Platonic harmony and his Catholic faith produced a deep melancholy, which is apparent in every page of "Don Quixote."

This state of mind was characteristic of the best thinkers at the end of the 16th century, but Cervantes alone was able to forge from his melancholy a new art, which even to-day we consider modern.

A second lecture, "Cervantes and the Counter-Reformation—the Knight," will be given this afternoon, and the concluding lecture to-morrow will be "Cervantes and Don Quixote—the Wanderer."

NEW VICAR OF BELFAST.

ARCHDEACON KERR APPOINTED.

The Ven. W. S. Kerr, B.D., Archdeacon of Dromore and Rector of Seapatrick, Banbridge, was appointed yesterday Vicar of Belfast in succession to the late Dean Brett. The new Vicar was ordained for the curacy of Lurgan in 1897. Two years later he was appointed curate of St. James's, Antrim road, Belfast, where he remained until 1901. In that year he was appointed rector of Ballywalter, where he remained for nine years. In 1910 he became rector of St. Paul's, Belfast, where he remained until his appointment as rector of Seapatrick.

In January, 1930, when the Ven. E. D. Atkinson, rector of Kilbroney Parish, Rostrevor, resigned the Archdeaconry of Dromore in order to devote all his time to his parish, the Bishop, Right Rev. Dr. Grierson, appointed the rector of Seapatrick to that position.

Archdeacon Kerr has achieved no little distinction as a writer, and "The Independence of the Celtic Church in Ireland," which he published last year, was widely read.

R.D.S. MUSICAL RECITAL.

SONATAS FOR 'CELLO AND PIANOFORTE.

VISIT OF ANTONI SALA.

FOR its musical recitals yesterday the Royal Dublin Society brought forward a 'cellist not heard in Dublin before. This was Antoni Sala, who, in facing audiences at Ballsbridge, has to reckon with the fact that in the past two or three seasons these audiences have been under the spell of two outstandingly brilliant 'cellists in Gaspar Cassado and Arturo Bonucci, both of whom, by the way, are due to appear again here before the season is out.

In the evening programme Mr. Sala may have allowed himself more display of prowess; but at the afternoon recital one's attention fastened more naturally on the character and message of the music than upon any feats of executive skill. With Mr. Howard Ferguson as his partner, Mr. Sala brought forward three sonatas for 'cello and pianoforte, all of which were rich in musical interest. They were these—Sonata in G minor, Bach; Sonata, John Ireland, and Sonata in E minor, Op. 38, Brahms.

The performers did not let the music down. The 'cellist, who produced a tone clear and rich in character in smooth passages and nimbly brisk when the music quickened, was well liked. In the Bach Sonata the pianist might have given the 'cello a better chance to stand out, but in the other sonatas Mr. Ferguson could not be blamed for any struggles the 'cello may have seemed to make to hold its own. John Ireland's writing for the pianoforte in the sonata which was played yesterday showed all the thickness that is characteristic of the composer's work in his later period: and as for Brahms, his Sonata in E minor has a pianoforte part crowded with interest through its whole course, so that the 'cellist is very far from being able to get away with all the glory for himself.

JOHN IRELAND'S SONATA.

Antoni Sala's name for some years has been associated with John Ireland's Sonata, which he has played frequently in company with the composer. There is, indeed, a gramophone recording of their performance together.

The sonata was written in 1924, and well represents John Ireland's slowly-reached maturity as a composer. The music, with its clotted pianoforte writing, its apparent lack of co-ordination between the two instruments in many passages, and a rather constant severity in the character of its themes, may not attract every listener at the first hearing; but to its peculiarities one may become accustomed, and to its strength and its serious beauty gradually more alive.

From his connection with this sonata, and his supporting it in the programme with such works as the Bach and Brahms Sonatas, one is bound to assume Mr. Sala's earnest concern above all things for the strictly artistic aspect of the 'cellist's rôle in chamber music. That assumption was supported to the full by the manner of his performance. In short, to return to where we began, his aim seemed to be to leave the attention of his audience on the music's intrinsic qualities.

OBBLIGATO.

IRISH PICTURES FOR LONDON.

THREE FROM GALLERY OF MODERN ART.

Ireland will be well represented at the Commemoration Exhibition which is to be held by the Royal Academy, London, this winter. The exhibition will consist of the works of recently deceased members of the Royal Academy and Associates, and they have been collected from various sources.

The Dublin Corporation has been approached as the custodian of the works of art in the Municipal Gallery of Modern Art, Harcourt street, Dublin. The Corporation has decided to contribute to the Winter Exhibition, 1933, three works on loan, and the following pictures have been selected:—"The parable of the Vineyard," by Charles Ricketts, R.A.; "A Breezy Day, Howth," by Sir William Orpen, R.A.; and "China and Japan—Reflections," also by Orpen. Fourteen artists in all will be represented.

They are:—Sir Frank Dicksee, P.R.A., died 17th October, 1928, aged 74; Sir George J. Frampton, R.A., died 21st May, 1928; Maurice Greiffenhagen, R.A., died 26th December, 1931, aged 69; G. W. Lambert, A.R.A., died 28th May, 1930, aged 56; H. H. La Thangue, R.A., died 21st December, 1929, aged 70; David Muirhead, A.R.A., died 21st April, 1930, aged 62; Sir Bertram Mackennal, R.A., died 11th October, 1931, aged 68; Sir William Orpen, R.A., died 29th September, 1931, aged 52; F. W. Pomeroy, R.A., died 26th May, 1924, aged 66; H. Poole, R.A., died 15th August, 1928, aged 51; C. Ricketts, R.A., died 7th October, 1931, aged 65; Charles Sims, R.A., died 13th April, 1928, aged 54; H. S. Tuke, R.A., died 13th March, 1929, aged 70; W. L. Wyllie, R.A., died 6th April, 1931, aged 79.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

APPEAL TO FREE STATE FILM CENSOR.

"Training Animals for Circus and Cinema" was the subject of a lecture delivered by Captain Edmund MacMichael, Honorary Secretary of the Performing and Captive Animals Defence League, of London, in the Mansion House, Dublin, last night.

Professor Mary Hayden, M.A., who presided, read a letter from General O'Duffy, who stated that he believed in the attempt to suppress cruelty to animals. He would like to assist them in every way he could, and he was sure that if the people who went to cinemas saw the cruelty that animals had to undergo in training, they would be strongly opposed to the methods used by trainers. He hoped that they would receive support in attaining their object.

Captain MacMichael, in his address, said that the House of Lords in 1930 passed a bill prohibiting performances by wild animals, because of the cruelty inflicted in the training of the animals. That bill, unfortunately, had not yet become law, but the object gave a lead to other branches of constitutional authority not to encourage such performances. His main object in coming to the Free State was to get the Irish film censor to adopt a motion which, he thought, would definitely stamp out cruelty to animals, without injuring any of the film trades or taking value from programmes. The motion asked that no certificate be granted to films unless there was a declaration that no cruelty had been inflicted on the performing animals.

The resolution was passed. Many people were present to hear Captain MacMichael's address, in which he related instances of cruelty to animals and read extracts from publications dealing with the matter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

ENGLISH TEAM TO VISIT DUBLIN.

Irish bridge players will be interested to learn that Colonel Buller is bringing over a team of English players to compete in a duplicate contract bridge match against a team of Irish players on the 25th, 26th, and 27th November. It will be remembered that Colonel Buller captained the team of English players which played in London two years ago against a team of American players, which included Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson.

The forthcoming match in Dublin is the outcome of a challenge issued by Colonel Buller, and taken up by the Contract Bridge Association of Ireland. The Association has for some time past been engaged in the task of testing the best available players, and with this object in view has conducted a number of eliminating trials on duplicate lines. As a result of these trials the following pairs have been selected:—Mrs. H. J. Brown and Mrs. McCormick; Mr. J. B. Shortt and Dr. Gerald Tierney, and Mr. B. Williams and Mr. H. Williams.

One pair, consisting of Mrs. Bowles and Mrs. Colgan, who were originally chosen on the team, have had to declare off.

It is understood that the match will be held at the Royal Hibernian Hotel, Dawson street, Dublin, and that admission will be free to the public.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE NOTES.

A CROWDED WEEK.

"GOOD MORNING, BILL."

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

THE past week has been exceptionally busy in College, as regards social functions and meetings of various kinds. Sometimes it happens that the really important functions clash with one another—all in the same week—and so it seems to have occurred this week.

On Monday night last the Dramatic Society gave a second performance of its new production, "Good Morning, Bill," with which it successfully inaugurated the season on Saturday week. This was really a remarkable achievement for the Dramatic Society, and the production well merited the praise it was given during the week. Particularly good were Messrs. Denis Devlin and Donough Coffey in the principal rôles. The next production by the Society will be a comedy in Irish, to be produced by Mr. Caomhghin O Cathain at the end of term.

On Tuesday night the Boxing Club held the annual Novices' Championships, which attracted a big entry from beginners. There was a large attendance of students and of the public. The meeting concluded with the presentation of prizes by Dr. McCarville, President of the club. On the same night An Cumann Gaedhealach held an impromptu debate, with Mr. Liam Gogan, M.A., in the chair. Increasing numbers of students attend the meetings of this society to take advantage of the opportunities that it affords for exercising and improving their talents for debate in Irish. To-morrow night the society will debate a motion concerning education, with Mr. Seumas Delargy, M.A., in the chair. Mr. Delargy is a lecturer in Irish Folklore in the college, and is well known for his untiring efforts to prevent the ancient tradition of the Irish from being lost to posterity.

THE RUGBY DANCE.

The principal event of Wednesday last was the Rugby club's dance in the Gresham Hotel, which followed the Colours match against Queen's. A...ough beaten towards the end of the match, the College team entered into its task as host at the dance with goodwill. The event was most enjoyable. Nearly six hundred people were present, including students, professors, and members of the State and municipal administrations. The next important dance will be held by the Boat Club in the Metropole Ballroom on December 12th. On Wednesday afternoon the Chemical Society held its usual meeting in the College of Science, at which Mr. D. M. Fitzpatrick, S.J., read a paper on "Mendeléef and the Periodic Classification." In the course of the paper Mr. Fitzpatr... dealt with the previous theories which induced Mendeléef to try to classify the elements, and traced the growth of the classification till its proof was reached by the theory of the Rutherford atom. A discussion of the paper followed, and the speaker was warmly congratulated by all present. To-day the Chemical Society will visit the factory of Messrs. Urney, Ltd., at Tallaght. This is the first of the Society's popular excursions this year, and later excursions will include visits to Guinness's Brewery and to the sugar factory at Carlow.

A meeting of the S.R.C. was to have been held on Wednesday, but was postponed till Friday on account of the Rugby dance. The principal business despatched on Friday was the election of an election committee to arrange for the annual elections to the Council, which will be held next week. The election will be followed by the election of a president and committee. Mr. D. J. O'Sullivan, M.Sc., seems to be the only person likely to go forward for the presidency, while Mr. F. P. Russell, of the Faculty of Science, is a probable candidate for the secretaryship.

VARIOUS SOCIETIES.

The English Literary Society will hold a meeting this afternoon, at which Miss Paula Mecklenberg, a talented student of modern literature, will read a paper on "Byron." The English Literary Society is one of those societies, formerly small and little known, which are rapidly rivalling the bigger and older bodies in popularity. The French Society has not held a meeting this term, but Mr. Colum Gavan-Duffy, the secretary, tells me that regular meetings will begin shortly. The Society will hold this year another soirée in the manner of last year's function, while its inagurual meeting will be held next term.

On Saturday last the President, Dr. Coffey, again met the candidates in the recent Auditorial election in the Literary and Historical Society, in an endeavour to settle the dispute which arose over the manner of the election. The results of the negotiations were not announced, but it is probable that, if no decision is reached, meetings of the Society will be resumed under the Auditorship of Mr. Cearbhaill O Dalaigh, last year's Auditor.

On Friday afternoon, the Reverend Bro. Tatton, M.A., read a paper to the Cumann Litheradha on "Piaras Mac Gearailt," and on Saturday night the Commerce Society debated, with Senator Johnson in the chair.

The dance in connection with the recent charity "rag" will be held in the Mansion House on Wednesday night. A committee has been formed to deal with the organisation, which includes Messrs. J. F. Nevin, B.Sc., and Brian O Nuallain, B.A., who organised the "rag" itself so successfully a fortnight ago.

Mr. M. J. Phelan, this term's editor of the College magazine, tells me that the next number has gone to press, and may be expected in a day or two.

THE LIFEBOAT INSTITUTION.

MEETING OF THE LADIES' GUILD.

A Ladies' Guild (Entertainment Committee) meeting of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, Dublin Branch, was held on Friday last, 18th inst., at 110 Grafton street, Dublin. The Contessa Van Cutsem, Vice-President and chairman, presided, and the meeting was splendidly attended.

It was decided to hold monthly meetings, the next meeting being fixed for Friday, 16th December; a whist drive in the Mansion House on Friday, 27th January, 1933, and a Lifeboat ball on Tuesday, 25th April, 1933 (Punchestown night).

The Contessa Van Cutsem also informed the meeting that she was kindly presenting a "Grace Darling" brooch to the lady collector with the best collection for the current year. This was specially appreciated, and a review of Grace Darling's wonderful feat and life was read by the District Organising Secretary, it being pointed out that her great achievement was recorded about exactly ninety years ago.

The attendance included:—Mrs. Walter Baird, Mrs. David Barry, Mrs. Bate, Mrs. J. F. Boydell, Mrs. Gerald Byrne, Mrs. W. T. Callaghan, Miss Eivers, Mrs. Elson, Mrs. T. L. M. Fuge, Miss E. Goodbody, Mrs. Crichton Haines, Mrs. J. Harbron, Mrs. Harding, Miss Harvey-Robinson, Miss P. Macintosh, Mrs. Marsden, Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. Mulrooney, Mrs. Walter Sexton, Miss S. Sexton, Mrs. J. M. Upton, Miss B. White, Mrs. I. M. Wright, Major Arthur Whewell, Chairman, Special Effort Committee; Mr. J. F. Boydell, Hon. Treasurer; Mr. T. L. M. Fuge, District Organising Secretary; Mr. B. J. Newcombe, Assistant Secretary.

OLD PORTORA UNION.

The annual general meeting of the Old Portora Union was held last Friday, Canon J. W. Crozier presiding. Sir C. A. Tegart, C.S.I., C.I.E., M.V.O., was elected president in room of the late Dr. L. C. Purser. Dr. W. C. MacFetridge was elected a vice-president. Mr. E. W. Jones was elected honorary secretary, and Messrs. O. W. McCutcheon, F. E. Beckett, F. H. Wallace and J. C. Cole were elected to the committee. The next annual dinner was fixed for Friday, March 10, the evening of the Ireland-Wales Rugby football match in Belfast, where the dinner will be held.

A vote of congratulation was passed to Mr. E. D. Camier, University Student in mathematics for 1932, and there was a preliminary discussion as to the form of the proposed memorial at the school to Henry Frances Lyte, the well-known hymn-writer.

WHERE THE PRESS LEADS.

DIFFERENT FORMS OF PUBLICITY.

CENSORSHIP OF POSTERS.

AT the weekly meeting of the Dublin Rotary Club yesterday in the Metropole Restaurant, Mr. John Mohan, of the firm of Messrs. D. Allen and Co., gave a talk on "Poster Publicity." Outdoor advertising of a kind, he said, was made use of centuries ago, and probably dated farther back than any other means of "making known"; for they found that gladiatorial contests in the days of Pompeii were heralded in colours, red and black predominating, and centuries ago in Egypt the capture of runaway slaves was often effected through the distribution of handbills made of papyrus, with a description of the fugitive and an offer of reward for the capture.

Very often one heard people who had virtually no interest in any form of publicity debating gravely the relative value of the Press and the poster. There was really no such problem. Both, he suggested, were important forms of publicity, and might, and, indeed, should be used as complementary, one to the other in big national campaigns. Where extensive wording was required the Press was more suitable, but for the sale of any article or service which could be advertised by picture with a simple statement or slogan the poster had many advantages.

AMERICA'S EXAMPLE.

The structural changes and improvements in outdoor advertising had been, to a large extent, modelled on the type of outdoor publicity display in America.

As to poster designs, a real idea was one which could be picturised and expressed, year after year, in a variety of specific ways. To educate the public to think a certain thing about a product it was necessary to formulate a sound basic idea which would convey this thing, and tell it and picturise it in various ways. Few ideas stood this test, but they could be evolved. There was only one idea that made a really successful advertising campaign; the clean-cut, direct, simple and easily understandable. Insistence upon this removed impractical and unwise ideas and all the things that were not ideas at all.

Mr. Mohan gave a brief description of the various processes through which an artistically coloured poster must go.

CENSORSHIP.

It was not generally known that the Poster Advertising Association had a special Censorship Committee. All posters, which might be considered objectionable from any point of view whatever, were submitted to them, and their ruling in regard to display was loyally adhered to. In this way posters of an objectionable character, or in bad taste, had been kept off the advertising stations.

Mr. T. Grehan said that to-day outdoor advertising from most menial, modest and unattractive beginnings, was a salesmanship adjunct of supreme importance.

Sir Thomas Robinson said that they had heard a most interesting talk, and he suggested that other members of the Club should follow the example of Mr. Mohan and give the Club talks on the businesses with which they were associated.

Mr. S. T. Riordan said that the address of Mr. Mohan had appealed to him as a very interesting subject.

The President (the Rev. Dr. Hanna) thanked Mr. Mohan for his interesting address.

Among the guests were:—Mr. Crawford, of the Rotary Club, Colomba, Ceylon; Messrs. John Irwin, E. S. Gillespie, P. A. Halpin, Frank Douglas, D. K. Stewart (all of Dublin), and Mr. E. T. McMichael (London).

INDIAN ILLUSIONS.

PROGRAMME AT OLYMPIA THEATRE.

There is an excellent variety programme at the Olympia Theatre, Dublin, this week, the chief attraction being Linga Singh, who provides a long and thoroughly interesting entertainment of surprising illusions, very cleverly performed.

Last night large attendances enjoyed his mysterious tricks, and many people sampled the beer which he drew from a cask into which he had previously poured bucket after bucket of water. The stage settings were sumptuous for his enchanted tent, in which he was assisted by Miss Lakhsmi and nautch dancing girls. Amongst his more notable achievements were the "burning" of a woman alive, making a woman mysteriously disappear in full view, the Indian rope trick, and making a horse and rider disappear in full view.

Miss Sita Devi, the Oriental vocalist, contributed songs during the performance.

Gunga Din won the favour of the audiences, and his selections on the concertina dovetailed appropriately into the next item—the Leap Year waltzes. The stage effects for this item were pretty, and the mechanically produced changes of colour added to the atmosphere of the scene. The somewhat novel notion of the young women of the company leaving the stage and securing male partners fr... the auditorium was very successful in its results, and, to the Blue Danube waltz, a merry party enjoyed the experience.

Joe Stein was in good humour in "The Kellys and the Cohens," and Bob Lloyd and Betty Hill, in "Nonsense," were full of fun. Ladd West, a "twister," was a remarkably capable contortionist, who gave the impression of a man without bones, tying himself into a knot and doing other difficult twists with his limbs and body. Madame Desmond's Eight Young Ladies were graceful dancers and good singers, and Jack and Emily were also accomplished artistes.

MANSION SOLD FOR 5/-.

FORMER HOME OF MILLIONAIRE.

Five shillings was the price paid for a mansion occupied, when he was first married, by the late Mr. W. H. Coats, a millionaire member of the firm of Messrs. J. and P. Coats, of Woodside, Paisley, when it came up for auction at Glasgow yesterday. Only one bidder (a woman) made any offer, and her bid of 5s. was accepted.

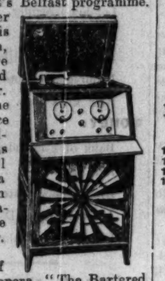
A representative of the agents, in an interview, described the price secured for the house as "unprecedented." The house is situated in a residential district of Paisley. After being in the possession of Mr. W. H. Coats, the house was later occupied by a secretary of the firm. Standing in grounds of one and a half acres, the house contains a hall, cloakroom, two public rooms, kitchen, four bedrooms, bathroom, nursery and nursery bathroom, and a large storeroom in attic. There are several subsidiary buildings in the grounds.

The assessed rent of the house is £90, and the feu duty is about £37. There being no reserve or upset price, the property went to the highest bidder. For some time the house has been unoccupied. Before it can be occupied it will require extensive repairs.

ON THE WIRELESS

THE OTHER LISTENER.

A PROGRAMME composed of extracts from letters written by listeners to the editor of The Radio Times, in which criticism of broadcasts and suggestions for improvements are contained, will be included in to-night's Belfast programme. "What the Other Listener Thinks" is the title of the item, and the extracts have been chosen and arranged by Mr. Mungo Dewar. The Alexandra Male Voice Choir and the Belfast Wireless Chorus and Orchestra will take part with a number of soloists in the musical illustrations, under the direction of Mr. Philip Whiteway.



The third act of Frederic Smetana's opera, "The Bartered Bride," will be relayed by the National and Belfast Stations from the Theatre Royal, Halifax, where the Covent Garden Opera will give a performance of the opera under the conductorship of John Barbirolli. Miss Rispah Goodacre plays the part of Kathinka, the wife of the peasant Krushina, who is played by Mr. Samuel Worthington.

THE UNCHARITABLENESS OF PROTESTANTISM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I am grateful to Canon Harvey for the courtesy of his answer in yesterday's issue of the Irish Times. The Canon's initial resentment, he assures us, "has entirely disappeared," since I gave "an assurance that my words embodied an economic theory rather than an unkind insinuation." I had, indeed attempted to be both charitable and direct. I am not, however, aware of having given any assurance that my words were limited to the expression of "an economic theory." My letter embodied something much more wide and deep. To trace post-Reformation capitalism to its origin, the extreme individualism of Protestant teaching, to distinguish true charity from mere human benefaction, to assert that the spirit of Protestantism does not find full expression in Protestants themselves—this is an expression of doctrinal teaching, not of economics.

In conclusion, as the laws of fair debate allow, I may be permitted to emphasise the true teaching of the Catholic Church on the two main points of Canon Harvey's final letter—true liberty and true charity. I write only to prevent further misunderstanding in regard to Catholic dogma.

Firstly for liberty. True liberty, of which Leo XIII. speaks in the Encyclical quoted by the Canon, is the moral and physical power to do that which it is right and good for man to do. The field of man's election in things of conduct is only what a man may do as a reasonable being. It is not for man's own mind to determine for himself what it is lawful to do. That function of determining for a man what it is right to do belongs to God. To the ruling of God every individual mind must conform; but, to know God's mind as regulating human conduct, there is needed, here on earth, a living and infallible interpreter of that mind. To leave that interpretation to the weak and fallible and prejudiced mind of individual men is only to evoke a chaos of confused opinions. Such is, and always has been, the teaching of the one true Church, the Catholic Church. Only within the Catholic Church is a safeguard found against inordinate individual interpretation of doctrine and morality; for, only within her fold, is found the supreme, living, teaching authority having power from God infallibly to declare what is right or what is wrong, according to the mind of God.

Therefore, when Protestantism teaches the unrestricted use of private judgment, it thereby and at once allows to every man to choose as right and wrong that only which he individually wishes to accept as right or wrong. Man's judgment, not God's law, is made supreme arbiter. Given man's liability to error as a result of original sin, it is but a matter of time until the man of strongest mind and will enforces his own concepts of right and wrong upon the weaker: it is the reign of inordinate individualism. Thenceforth the genesis of post-Reformation capitalism is, as I said, easy to trace: "Uncontrolled private judgment has for issue inordinate individualism. Inordinate individualism begets unrestrained competition. Unrestrained competition has for child the right of the strongest. The right of the strongest engenders in politics State absolutism, and in economics post-Reformation capitalism."

Secondly, in regard of charity. Protestants (must I say it again?) can do truly charitable acts, and these acts are such, if and when they proceed from a supernatural principle. The charitable act, if done by a person in sanctifying grace, is both supernatural and truly meritorious of eternal life. The charitable act, if done by a person not in sanctifying grace, but yet under the influence of the supernatural assistance, called by Catholics actual grace, is only supernatural, but is not truly meritorious of eternal life. If, then, Protestants perform such truly charitable acts, it is in despite of the principles which Luther taught. He rejected both sanctifying grace as an inner quality of the soul and good works availing unto salvation. Therefore, I must again assert, the spirit of Protestantism does not find its full expression in precisely those Protestants who perform truly charitable acts.

So I have demonstrated that "Protestantism is inimical to charity," thus far to quote the Canon. Never once have I, as he remarks, "minimised the charity of Protestants as manifested in their good works"—if by charity we always understand that which it meant for Christ and the infallible interpreter of His mind, the one, true Catholic Church. I thank you, sir, for the courtesy of allowing me to use your columns for my previous letter and this, my final answer.—Yours, etc.,

Up the Mourne By Rail.

Schemes to Attract Tourists.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

THE encircling of Slieve Donard, the highest peak of the Mourne range, by an electric railway, and the provision of a harbour capable of berthing cross-Channel pleasure steamers again are contemplated as a result of the visit of the Prince of Wales to Newcastle on two consecutive days during the period of his stay in Northern Ireland.

Some time ago there was considerable correspondence in the Press on the various aspects of those proposals. It was then felt that the provision of an electric railway and the erection of a palatial hotel in keeping with the project would disfigure to some extent the natural beauty of the mountain, but since then public opinion has changed considerably. When the matter was previously under consideration the initial cost of conserving a sufficient water supply for generating electricity during the summer months proved a stumbling block, but now, with the advent of the Electricity Board's main transmission line to Newcastle, the scheme is regarded as being capable of accomplishment.

It is understood that the ascent would be from the Blue Pool in the Donard Demesne, rising through some magnificent scenery to the Donard Falls, and, passing the Hermit's Glen, the line would be continued to the top of Thomas Mountain and thence to the summit of Slieve Donard. This railway would prove a boon to thousands of visitors who are unable to make the tortuous ascent on foot and would provide them with an unparalleled view of the Northern Province, the Isle of Man, and the distant shores of Scotland. It would be possible at a future date to embrace Slieve Commedagh, Shan Slieve, Slievenamaddy and Slievenabrock, which would provide a circuitous route to the base of Drinahilly.

A feature of the undertaking, no doubt, would be the erection of a hotel with a dance hall capable of accommodating a large number of people.

The long-cherished dream of possessing a harbour suitable of berthing cross-Channel pleasure steamers is part of the proposed undertaking, with a regular service during the summer months from various industrial centres across the Irish Sea. Having regard to the immense advantages which would be derived from the latter scheme it is confidently expected that the Northern Government will give financial assistance and practical help towards its realisation.

These schemes, coupled with the natural beauty of this pretty Irish watering place, probably would bring thousands of holiday-makers to Ulster every year.

Irish Tobacco.

Wexford Farmers to Experiment.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ENNISCORTHY, Monday.

At a largely-attended meeting in Enniscorthy, a County Wexford Tobacco-Growers' Association was formed, and the following Committee was appointed:—Captain Orpen, Monksgrange; Captain Condon, Boyrmount; Messrs. John Sinnott, Clonroche; D. O'Gorman, Adamstown; Thomas Jacob, Shroughmore; Denis Asple, Galbally, and G. Flood, Castleborough.

An address on the subject of tobacco-growing was delivered by the Rev. Dom Sweetman, Mount St. Benedict, Gorey, who urged every farmer to grow at least a quarter of an acre, or more if he had a place available for curing. The cost of sowing an acre was about £25, and a ready sale of the product could be made for £100 or £150.

It would take 30,000 acres of tobacco to supply the Irish market. He hoped that the valley of the Slaney would become one of the best tobacco-growing districts in the country.

Mr. Cahir Healy and Land Annuities.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ENNISKILLEN, Monday.

Mr. Cahir Healy, M.P., speaking at Coa to-day, said that Ulster farmers, irrespective of religion, wished their Free State brothers success in the matter of the land annuities. Some thought that the tariffs against the Free State by England would help their prices, but they had no effect. Ireland was a fiscal unit, and whatever depressed one area depressed the other. North and South must sink or swim together.

Belfast Editor Summoned.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

IN the Belfast Summons Court to-day, before Major J. D. McCallum, R.M., mention was made of a suit of District-Inspector Lewis against Sydney Redwood, 113-117 Donegall street, Belfast, editor of The Irish News, in respect of an alleged offence on November 8th under the Civil Authorities (Special Powers) Act, Northern Ireland, 1922, and the regulations made thereunder.

The summons was that the defendant, as editor, spread false reports and made statements in The Irish News which were intended to, and were likely to, prejudice the recruiting of persons to serve in the Royal Ulster Constabulary. The reports and statements, it was alleged, were also calculated or likely to cause disaffection among the civilian population of Northern Ireland, and were likely to interfere with the success of the Royal Ulster Constabulary acting for the preservation of the peace or maintenance of order in Northern Ireland.

The date of the hearing of the summons was fixed for Monday next.

Irish Slates.

Success of Mayo Enterprise.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CASTLEBAR, Monday.

LOUISBURGH (near Westport) slate quarries, recently re-opened, are yielding an output that promises a return on the local capital invested. The labour employed is local, and already there has been quarried and dressed a supply of slates of excellent quality, capable of meeting the requirements of the county, and prices compare more than favourably with those quoted for foreign slates.

The production of samples of the output at Mayo County Council evoked favourable comment, and a guarantee was given that these slates would be used for all works in the county over which the Council had control. A resolution was passed, calling the attention of architects, contractors, and builders' factors to them, and an order was given that they should be used on the three technical schools, the Mental Hospital extension, and the new offices of the County Surveyor.

The Board of Health issued instructions to their architects to use the slates on the new County Hospital and the six district hospitals that are about to be built from grants from the sweepstakes fund.

No outside capital was invited, and all the machinery in use was made locally. The work has attracted the widest interest, and Government departments are deeply interested.

Donegal Hospitals.

Opposition to Proposed Closing.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LIFFORD, Monday.

The Donegal Board of Health had before them to-day the report of Dr. McLysaght, Local Government Inspector, recommending that the Rock Hospital, Ballyshannon, and the County Infirmary, Lifford, should be closed. The report was severly criticised.

The Board received a deputation of almost fifty persons from Ballyshannon, Bundoran and Pettigo protesting against the closing of the Rock Hospital, which Mr. Daly, Town Clerk for Bundoran, said was one of the best equipped hospitals in the county, centrally situated for a population of 15,000 or 16,000. It was really a poor man's hospital, said Mr. Daly, and it would be a serious thing if it were removed from its present site. The expense of running the hospital was lower than that of any other hospital in the county.

Mr. Coyle, Ballyshannon, said that the poor of the district were prepared to pay for and maintain the hospital. It was the will of 90 per cent. of the people of that district.

Major Myles, T.D., said that the Department's ideas and their ideas as to what was good for the poor of the district did not always coincide. The hospital had an unblemished reputation.

Mr. V. P. McMullen, solicitor, on behalf of the ratepayers, served by the County Infirmary, Lifford, also opposed the recommendation. It had been the County Infirmary since 1767, he said, and the only objection, apparently, was one of situation. Its abolition was something that the Donegal people would not stand for.

Mr. Mahony, Chairman of the Hospital Committee, said that his Committee had determined strenuously to oppose the closing of the hospitals.

It was decided to oppose the proposal and ask for a cottage hospital at Milford.

Export of Potatoes.

Donegal Call for a Subsidy.

At a representative meeting of farmers of Ramelton (Co. Donegal) a discussion took place with reference to the British duty now imposed on potatoes. It was pointed out that last season over 30,000 tons of potatoes had been exported from County Donegal, of which about 4,000 tons were exported from Ramelton district. There is a much larger acreage under potatoes this year, but only 400 tons have been exported from Ramelton, and the export trade, owing to the new duty, is now dead.

The potato crop, it is pointed out, gives more employment than any other crop grown in the county, and if farmers this year are unable to dispose of their crop, they will have no inducement to put down potatoes next year, so that the number of unemployed in the district will be much increased.

It was resolved that the Government should be requested to grant a subsidy on the export of potatoes to the British market equal in amount to the British duties.

Hospital Outcry.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

TIPPERARY, Monday.

The proposal to erect a central hospital in Cashel for the South Riding of Tipperary is arousing determined opposition in the Tipperary area. Clergy attended meetings yesterday at Emly, Annacarty, and Donohill, and denounced the scheme as a gross hardship and injustice to the sick poor.

Oranmore Aerodrome.

With a view to developing airmindedness in the people west of the Shannon, and proving the suitability of Oranmore as an aerodrome not merely for light aeroplanes, but also for large-sized passenger aeroplanes, flights, under the supervision of Colonel Charles F. Russell, were organised by the Irish Aero Club during the week-end. No fewer than 215 passengers were taken up, and the experiment was considered a success.

LEITRIM COUNCIL AND C.I.D.

The Leitrim County Council yesterday passed a resolution calling for the disbandment of the C.I.D. force, "in the interests of the peace and good order of the country."

At the wool sale at Melbourne yesterday 11,000 bales were offered, of which 95 per cent. were sold. Japan and the Continent were the chief buyers. The average prices at the last series of wool sales here were £11 3s. 1d. a bale and 8.58d. a pound.

Leitrim Rates Chaos.

"No Dollars Coming From America."

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON, Monday.

REPORTING to Leitrim County Council to-day on the condition of the rate collection, the Secretary (Mr. W. Doyle) stated that the financial position of the Council was also that caused grave anxiety. It was evident that it would be impossible to maintain the services of the roads, Mental Hospital, poor relief, Board of Health and county services on the basis of the estimate unless revenue could be collected in some reasonable proportion to expenditure.

Since the beginning of the year expenditure had been double that of revenue. The expenditure had been £56,000, while receipts during the same period had been £28,000, with the result that, while the Council had a credit balance of over £12,900 on 31st March last, this had been converted into an overdraft of £15,000 at the end of September, and the overdraft had now reached £20,000. The revenue should have reached for the period £48,000, as against £21,000, and it was obvious at this rate of progress that serious difficulty would be found before long in providing money for essential services.

Only £9,559 15s. of the agricultural grant was received. As the total was £43,866, at least half of that should have been received.

Only £5,951 odd was lodged of the total of the rates for the half-year, which amounted to £22,165 odd. On the 17th inst. the total rates collected amounted to £9,763 odd.

The Council should consider the matter carefully, and take energetic steps to prevent the finances of the county from falling back to the condition of chaos from which they had recovered not so long since.

"NO DOLLARS FROM AMERICA."

A report was read from Mr. C. Flynn, rate collector for the Ballinaglera district, who stated that he could not collect the rates. All who had been able to pay had paid. The lack of money was due to the fact that there were "no dollars coming from America," and that the majority of the labourers who used to go from the district to England and Scotland could get no work there this year.

The Council adopted a resolution asking the Department to let them have the grants due, and urged the collectors not to press unduly those not able at the moment to pay their rates, but to see that these in a position to do so paid up at once.

SHOT IN THE LEG

FARM EVICTION SEQUEL.

A CHARGE OF MURDER.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

Philip Higgins, a farmer, of Cattan, Farmaught, County Leitrim, pleaded not guilty to the murder of Patrick Cunningham, another farmer in the same district, by shooting him on the 4th October last.

— M. Com , K.C., with Mr. J. Joyce (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), prosecuted, while Mr. B. McGuckin (instructed by Mr. A. Farrell, solicitor, Longford) defended.

A. Comyn said that in April, 1931, Patrick Cunningham, who lived with his father, his wife and four children in the townland of Cattan, Farmaught, County Leitrim, put up his farm for sale by auction. The accused man, Philip Higgins, who was the highest bidder at £312 .0s., paid £18 12s., the auctioneer's fees, and made a deposit of £89. Cunningham, the dead man, refused to complete the sale, and, as a result of legal proceedings against him, an order was made for the specific performance of the contract for the sale.

In July, 1932, Higgins lodged the purchase money in the Court, and obtained an order by which he would be put into possession by the Sheriff. In August Higgins stated that he got a threatening letter, which he took to the Garda Station at Farmaught, about six miles away from Cattan, where the murdered man and the accused man lived. Having got a certificate for the use of firearms, he bought a single-barrel gun and some cartridges of a deadly calibre.

The Sheriff subsequently went to the residence of Cunningham for the purpose of putting Higgins into possession of his farm. He put Cunningham, his father, his wife and four children out of possession of the farm, which he gave to Higgins.

A GENERAL ROW.

During the process there was an altercation between the parties, which was stopped by the Sheriff and the Guards.

Cunningham and his family during the spring had sown potatoes on the farm, which they wished to dig in September, and they went back to the farm for the purpose. The accused man, his wife and son, Paddy, went into the field, and sought to prevent the Cunninghams from digging up the potatoes. Mrs. Cunningham asked for some potatoes for her children, and the accused man, who had a gun, said to Cunningham: "Go away or I'll put the contents of this through you." Paddy Higgins said to his father: "Put down that, and let the woman take a few potatoes for the children." Cunningham and his wife carried potatoes to a house which they got after being evicted from the farm.

Passing on to the day of the shooting, Mr. Comyn said that Higgins's daughter told her father that the Cunninghams were "down the road." The daughter was sent for the gun, which Higgins loaded. Higgins went down the road with his wife. On meeting the Cunninghams Higgins asked Mrs. Cunningham, "What's up?" and Mrs. Higgins, the wife of the accused man, said to Mrs. Cunningham: "No more of your soft talk; finish it up this evening." Mrs. Higgins struck Cunningham, and a general row arose.

Higgins had a gun under his arm, and Cunningham had a hay-fork. After some exchanges and attempts to use the weapons, Higgins pointed the gun at Cunningham, and fired at him at close range. The shot lodged in Cunningham's leg, and Cunningham died as a result of the wound.

Counsel submitted that it was a case of premeditated and deliberate murder. Because a man was turned out of his land, he added, there was no reason why he should not have the protection of the law.

HOW SHOT WAS FIRED.

Mrs. Cunningham, wife of the dead man, in evidence, described the eviction scene, and bore out counsel's statement about events before the day of the shooting. The parties met on the road and after some words attempts were made to strike blows, and she (the witness) was injured on the elbow. Higgins ran round behind her towards her husband and shot him. Higgins at first had the gun under his arm; then he took it in his right hand before he shot her husband, who fell immediately. Neighbours came, and the two Higgins' went home, leaving her husband on the road. Later, Cunningham was put into a cart and brought to Harte's house, and was afterwards taken to Carrick-on-Shannon, and thence to Richmond Hospital, Dublin, where he died.

Mr. McGuckin (cross-examining)—Did you know that Higgins during all this time had been receiving threatening letters?—I did not know.

She denied that she or the dead man drove Higgins's cattle on the road.

Mr. McGuckin asked witness to demonstrate how the shot was fired, and the witness took the gun and presented it from her right shoulder.

Mr. McGuckin—That is, the accused took the gun from under his left arm and put it to his shoulder—a deliberate act?—Yes.

Do you agree that the demonstration you gave in the lower court was that he held the gun under his arm when the shot was fired?—Yes. I might have made a mistake.

The witness denied that she assaulted Mrs. Higgins after Cunningham was shot.

Mr. McGuckin—Did you say to Superintendent Ryan that you would "do the shooting of the Higgins yet," and that after you were gone there would be others to shoot them for you?—I do not remember.

But did you say it? It is not a thing you would forget?—I do not know whether I did or not.

THE PRISONER'S SON.

Patrick Higgins, son of the accused man, was called and described the incidents which led up to the meeting of the two families on the 4th October. He was, he said, a few perches up a lane when he heard the shot. Before that he saw Mrs. Cunningham strike his mother. Later he saw Cunningham lying on the ground.

The further hearing was adjourned until this morning.

NOTICE TO JURORS.

Jurors need not attend until to-morrow (Wednesday).

DUBLIN WOMAN'S WILL.

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

An application was made on behalf of Philip Isaac Wigoder, of 80 Mosley street, Manchester; Louis Ely Wigoder, of 134 Chapeltown road, Leeds; and Simon Wigoder, of Manor House, Morley, Leeds, for an order fixing the mode of trial of a probate suit brought by them against Annie Wigoder, of 66 Hannaville Park, Terenure, Dublin, and settling the issues to be tried. There was also an application on behalf of the defendant for an order for the discovery of documents by the plaintiffs.

The plaintiffs, as executors, seek to have admitted to probate in solemn form of law the will of the 4th January, 1927, of Harris Wigoder, late of Hannaville Park, Terenure, who died on 15th August last. The defence consists of the three usual statutory pleas.

It was stated that the assets were very considerable.

The Master directed that the case should be tried before a judge, with a jury, on the three ordinary issues, and gave the defendant an order for the discovery by the plaintiffs of all documents material and relevant for the trial of the issues, except the scripts already filed by the plaintiffs. He gave the plaintiffs a cross-order for discovery of documents by the defendant.

Mr. Michael J. Ryan, K.C., and Mr. D. Fausitt (instructed by Mr. P. D. O'Grady), appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Albert E Wood, K.C., and Mr. E. M. Wood (instructed by Mr. M. Noyk), for the defendant.

PROPOSED GAELTACHT SWEEP.

Gaedealtacta Trust, Limited, have published in our columns notice that application is intended to be made by them to the Oireachtas of Saorstat Eireann in the year 1933 for leave to bring in a bill to empower the said Gaedealtacta Trust, Limited, to hold sweepstakes and/or lotteries in Saorstat Eireann for the purpose of raising funds to provide for and promote the economic, social, industrial, educational, and cultural needs and interests of the people of the Gaeltacht and for the purpose of financially assisting other public, charitable, benevolent, or useful institutions, exhibitions, or objects.

EXPULSION AS PUNISHMENT.

ERASMUS SMITH'S RULES.

FURTHER HEARING OF APPEAL.

THE contention that the purpose of Erasmus Smith in endowing the charitable trusts administered by the Governors of the Erasmus Smith Schools was to promote the Protestant faith was further argued on the resumed hearing of the appeal brought by the Governors from a judgment and order of the High Court in their action against the Attorney-General and others, that the paramount intention of Erasmus Smith in endowing the trust was educational, and not religious.

Mr. Jellett, K.C., Mr. Overend, K.C., Mr. Kingsmill Moore and Mr. T. U. O'Dell (instructed by Messrs. Darley, Orpen and Synnott) appeared for the plaintiffs; the Attorney-General, Mr. McCann, K.C., Mr. Rice, K.C., and Mr. McGuckin (instructed by Messrs. O'Hanlon and Robinson) for the Attorney-General; Mr. Lavery, K.C., Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C., Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. John Hooper (instructed by Messrs. Sheridan and Kenny) for the Roman Catholic "special defendants"; and Mr. Dickie, K.C., Mr. Charles S. Campbell and Mr. W. Hamill (instructed by Messrs. Dickie, Coulter and Hamill) for the Presbyterian "special defendants."

CATHOLIC SCHOLARS.

Resuming his opening statement, Mr. Jellett reverted to the letter of Erasmus Smith of 6th June, 1682, to the Governors of the schools, and said that it was obvious that the Governors had communicated with Erasmus Smith in reference to a difficulty that had arisen about what they should do when they found that Catholic scholars were not prepared to attend religious instruction. The deed provided for punishment, and to clear up any ambiguity on the matter the Governors communicated with Erasmus Smith, who, in his letter, gave the definite instruction: "If they will not attend religious instruction expel them."

That answer was from the founder of the schools himself—from the only man who had anything whatever to say to what they were to do, and if they went back to the deed they found a recital of his intention. The scholars were to be educated in the fear of God and good literature.

What they had now to find out, proceeded Mr. Jellett, was what was the meaning of those words in the mind and in the mouth of the man who used them. Their meaning was clear from the document of the man himself.

Mr. Justice Murnaghan—This letter interprets punishment as meaning expulsion.

Mr. Jellett—Certainly; and, of course, it gives emphasis to the fact that the essence of this whole foundation is Protestant, because, he says, if they will not submit to Protestant instruction they can go, and there can scarcely be a more emphatic way of insisting that the intention of the charity was Protestant.

Passing on to the rules made by Erasmus Smith in relation to the carrying on of the endowment, Mr. Jellett said that these rules were emphatic and definite, and were made under the power given to Erasmus Smith by the charter. They were to have the full force of law, provided that they did not infringe the constitution or the canons of the Church of Ireland. Yet these rules were entirely ignored and pushed aside by the learned judge.

Erasmus Smith, during his lifetime, was the person to make the rules, and after his death the Governors had analogous powers, always provided that they did not make any rule that interfered with the constitution or the canons of the Church of Ireland in any way.

SURPLUS FUNDS.

Proceeding, Mr. Jellett dealt with the disposal of the surplus funds after discharging all existing charitable trusts and uses. Fellowships and professorships, he said, were provided in Trinity College, and chambers were to be built in the college for the boys coming from the Grammar Schools.

Mr. Justice Johnston asked were such chambers erected.

Mr. Jellett replied that they were erected and subsequently burned. He then referred to an agreement made between the Governors of the Erasmus Smith Schools and the Governors of the Blue Coat Hospital—an exclusively Protestant institution. The Lord Mayor, the Recorder and two Aldermen were to be elected as Governors of the Blue Coat Hospital. Catholics at that time were not eligible for election as Lord Mayor and Aldermen. When that condition of affairs was changed by the Municipal Corporation Act, the Legislature recognised the essentially Protestant character of this institution by repealing a statute which would conflict in any way with the Protestant character of the School. Mr. Justice Meredith held that the Statute 10 George I. got rid of the Deed of Foundation absolutely and entirely, when the only object of that statute was to tell the Governors what they were to do with the surplus money after discharging all the trusts reposed in them.

Mr. Justice Murnaghan said that they had their difficulty in the charter, which had a different disposition from the Transmitted Bill.

Replying to Mr. Justice Johnston, Mr. Jellett said that he did not ask for a scheme. The defendants asked for a scheme.

Mr. Lavery said that it was not quite right to say that the trustees could apply the funds according to the strict Letter of Foundation. These proceedings were started when the trustees proposed to start a bill in the Oireachtas to give themselves power to alter the trusts of the document. These proceedings were started for a declaration of the essential nature of the trusts, and for their alteration either by legislation or in the courts.

Mr. Justice Murnaghan—I think it is obvious that you cannot leave the three documents as if they were the same thing. When changes are made you want to see what they are.

Mr. Jellett—If you find in a subsequent document effective alterations to what went before, you give effect to those alterations. The Act of George I. provided for the surplus money. As time went on they had more money than they could apply for the purposes of the trusts as originally declared.

Continuing, Mr. Jellett said that the Erasmus Smith Schools were expressly excluded from the operation of the Endowed Schools Act of 1813, because this was not a public or national institution, but a private endowment.

THE ENGLISH ORDER.

Replying to the Chief Justice, Mr. Jellett said that the "English schools" had their origin in the Statute 28, Henry VIII., Cap. 15, which provided that "the English order, habit and language were to be observed and taught."

Mr. Justice Johnston—Was that in contradistinction to Latin?

Mr. Jellett said that he thought it referred to the Irish language. By the Statute 12, Elizabeth, Cap. 1, one free school was erected in every diocese. These were the diocesan schools in which the scholars were to be taught English.

Having summarised the different statutes to which he had referred, dealing with the endowment, Mr. Jellett returned to the statement of claim, and said that the declaration claimed by the plaintiffs regarding the end and object of Erasmus Smith in creating and endowing the trusts was a declaration, the language of which was not the language of a pleader, but the language of Erasmus Smith himself, and the issue having been raised, of a Protestant foundation on the one hand, and the claims of Catholics on the other, it became absolutely vital that this issue should be decided—what was the intention of Erasmus Smith? Accordingly, they asked for a declaration, which meant that the Governors were bound to do what the document said they were bound to do, and that the liability imposed on them to do what they were commanded to do was not dependent on the fact that some people did not like it, and would not have it. Mr. Justice Meredith had held that the paramount intention eliminated the religious element altogether, and, at the same time, he held that the provisions for religious education were mandatory.

Counsel intimated that he was faced with an enormous task—the reading of 500 pages of printed evidence—and this would take a week. He had objected to the evidence tendered with the purpose of showing that Erasmus Smith obtained his title to the lands by fraud, and that, in that fraud, the Court of Claims, the Commissioners, the Trustees, Erasmus Smith and the Crown were involved up to their neck.

Mr. Jellett, replying to the Chief Justice, said that fraud was not an issue in this action.

Mr. Lavery said that he did not accept Mr. Jellett's view with regard to the issue of fraud.

Mr. Jellett said that he would read the evidence of Father Corcoran, Professor Alison Phillips and Professor Weaver. With regard to Father Ronan's evidence, he would read what the defendants wished read.

Chief Justice—This is so vast that we must watch that so much as is not relevant is not introduced.

The further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

A Fateful Choice.

President de Valera rejects his country's partnership in the British Empire, but it is that partnership which makes him today an arbiter of the peace of two continents. It is bare truth that the moral and, perhaps, the material, future of the world depends on the solution of the Manchurian issue, which came yesterday before the Council of the League of Nations. At former meetings the Council evaded the issue, but now evasion has ceased to be possible. Manchuria is a part of China, over which Japan by slow degrees has assumed an economic and military lordship, that culminated recently in her establishment of the so-called independent State of Manchukuo. China protested to the League, which sent a highly qualified Commission to Manchuria, and some weeks ago this Commission presented its report. It acknowledges Japan's special interests in Manchuria, but proclaims China's sovereignty in the province, and refuses to accept the alleged "independence" of Manchukuo. As a "durable solution of the conflict" the Commission proposes a special régime for Manchuria. The area would be demilitarised, and order would be maintained by an international gendarmerie. Under the Commission's scheme the Manchurian settlement would become an increasing factor in a general settlement between China and Japan. In effect, the peace of Manchuria would guarantee not only the peace of the Far East, but the economic development of China.

On this occasion the League is confronted with a hard and ineluctable choice between right and wrong. China is prepared to accept the findings of the Lytton Commission's report; Japan rejects them. She made her attitude clear two months ago, and her delegate, Mr. Matsuoka, confirmed it yesterday in his speech to the Council. Bluntly, Japan declares that her recognition of Manchukuo is an immutable fact, and that argument about it would be waste of time. She says, truly enough, that a thousand difficulties were created for her by Chinese incompetence and by the lack of any real Government at Nanking. Mr. Matsuoka made all his points quite cleverly, insisting that the Japanese were not aggressors, and that they had an earnest desire for peace with China. Nevertheless, Japan's answer to the League is "J'y suis, j'y reste, and in so far as your Commission's report impairs my hold on Manchuria, I refuse to talk about it." Indeed, Japan has staked her very existence on her military strength in Northern China. In her draft Budget, just adopted by the Cabinet, her army and navy estimates account for more than fifty per cent. of the total, and she has reached the limit of taxation which her people will bear. Most of this expenditure has been dictated by her Manchurian adventure.

China has no huge army, no formidable navy; in this crisis she throws herself upon the honour—the pledged word—of western civilisation. She appeals to the careful machinery, the interlaced and majestic safeguards, of the League of Nations. The Japanese claim violates them all. It is contrary to the provisions of the League Covenant, the Kellogg Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty; it is an open challenge to the League's doctrine that no situation can be acknowledged which has been created by the violation of treaties. China declares that, if the League fails her, she will maintain her right to Manchuria at any cost of life or suffering. Now, therefore, the League of Nations must decide whether the rule of force or the rule of law shall triumph in the five continents. It must consider material and moral issues. If Japan's claim is rejected at Geneva, she may resign her place in the League—although, as we think, her bankers would quarrel with her generals on this point. If the League turns a cynical back on China, that huge Republic may tumble into a welter of anarchy or into the arms of Russian Bolshevism. These are tremendous considerations; yet the moral consideration eclipses them. If Britain, France and the United States stand fast for the rule of law, it will prevail; and by their action the League will have received a vast increase of prestige and power. Such a decision would be a shining landmark in the world's moral progress—a proof that philosophy's steadfast vision through more than twenty centuries was beginning to be fulfilled. If the League fails now, Japan will have vindicated the rule of force; the Great War will have been fought in vain, and humanity's relapse will resemble, on the moral scale, the Gothic invasion of the Roman Empire.

Italy's Example.

In a recent article in The Times Sir Daniel Hall drew attention to a remarkable work of reconstruction that is now on foot in Italy. While the outside world has been judging the Fascist régime by the rather flamboyant utterances of Signor Mussolini, and its ruthless campaign against democratic institutions, there has been much solid achievement within the Italian frontiers. Even the casual visitor cannot but notice the improvement in train services and in the general machinery of Italy's social life. The scheme which Sir Daniel Hall describes is known as "Bonifica." It began as an attempt to extirpate malaria from the marshy regions of Italy, but has developed into an enormous work of national reconstruction, giving employment to many thousands who otherwise would be destitute, and reclaiming hundreds of thousands of acres of land which formerly were nothing better than swamps. This task, on which some £31,000,000 have been spent, has been tackled with Signor Mussolini's customary enthusiasm. In order to get rid of malaria, which was engendered by the marshes of Calabria and the Po, as well as in many other districts, the Duce decided to get rid of the marshes. To that end he began a comprehensive system of drainage. He controlled the rivers from their sources in the mountains, building canals here and reservoirs there, draining land that was marshy, irrigating that which was dry. In this way huge areas have been reclaimed. In the Macarese district, not far from Rome, chicken farms have been established on land that six years ago was under water and was the haunt of wild buffaloes. Fifty hundred acres have been planted with vines, where formerly a dandelion would not have grown; and even in the Pontine marshes, which baffled the skill of the Romans two thousand years ago, some 180,000 acres are in process of reclamation. In the neighbourhood of Rome new roads have been built and villages have sprung up almost overnight. Agricultural labour that might have gone idle is finding plenty of work; and numerous schemes are being financed by the farmers, who can borrow money at cheap rates. One day, perhaps, a Free State Government may recognise the possibilities of similar work in this country. A start mght be made, for example, with the country towns and villages, many of which are a disgrace to any civilised community. If half the energy that is devoted to politics at present could be diverted to reconstructive activity, what a country Ireland might become! An Irish Mussolini would be a God-send; but none of our Mussolinis—and we have many of them—is cast in the Duce's mould.

Prohibition.

Mr. Franklin Roosevelt's election to the Presidency of the United States is hailed as the final victory over prohibition. Yet a long and weary way must be troddea before his nation, "wet" enough in practice, can grace its "wetness" once again with the benison of the law. Two enactments made prohibition binding on the American people. The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution forbade the sale and consumption of alcoholic liquors; the Volstead Act defined what was meant by alcoholic liquors. To remove a constitutional amendment is a long and arduous process, which requires, after other things, the vote of three-quarters of the States. It would be easier so to modify the Volstead Act—which at present defines an alcoholic beverage as any liquor which contains more than .5 per cent. of alcohol—that a tipple containing 50 per cent. of alcohol could be regarded as non-alcoholic for the purposes of the law. Nevertheless, satisfactory as such an evasion might be in practice, it would hardly be in accordance with legislative principles. Sooner or later, therefore, Mr. Roosevelt must see to the removal of the amendment; and he will be lucky if he manages to persuade a necessary majority of the States. It must be remembered that prohibition did not come upon America in one fell swoop. Long before anyone had heard of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act quite a number of the States were "dry," and enforced their prohibition laws far more vigorously and efficiently than the United States Government has been able to enforce the Federal regulations. There is no reason why any State may not revive the old local prohibition laws after the country at large has reverted to the saloon.

Dangerous Flights.

The United States Government has taken a wise step in its decision to forbid reckless or dangerous flights. Henceforward anybody who contemplates a trans-oceanic flight must receive the sanction of the Department of Commerce before his venture. The intention, says the Government's spokesman, is not to suppress the "sporting instincts of flying adventurers"; but there must be a reasonable prospect of success before the flight is sanctioned. People in general will agree with the decision. Most of the air routes which, by any stretch of fancy, can be regarded as necessary to the world's future communications have been covered already. The tracks which, in the present state of aircraft, are feasible have been discovered, and the experience of pioneers has revealed the routes which are not normally feasible. Everybody knows now that, in favourable conditions of the air, the North Atlantic can be overcome by a man whose nerve and skill are sound, so long as his machine is satisfactory; and at present nothing more definite can be said on the subject. Atlantic flights can teach no further lesson. To run risks for a useful purpose is sound policy, but to run risks for no purpose is mere foolishness, and the practice ought to be controlled. Military flyers are kept under a strict discipline, and what the highly trained air forces of the world are forbidden to do ought not to be left to the discretion of amateurs. The "thrill" which the public receives from some daring and spectacular flight must not be allowed to counterbalance the waste and risk which it involves.

CONVICTS STILL FREE.

The two Dartmoor convicts are still at liberty. Police searched Morwellham Wood yesterday, but it is so full of natural hiding places that the hopelessness of the search was realised this afternoon, and the police were withdrawn. They believe the men may be hiding in one of the disused tin mines in the area.

A party of police was sent to search a section of the moor between Yelverton and Plymouth last evening, following a report that two suspicious characters had been seen lurking behind some gorse bushes.

The alarm was raised by a Yelverton resident, who while walking over the moor heard a rustling noise coming from a coppice. He took no notice until he saw two figures jump and run at top speed into the heart of the moor.

JAPAN AND CHINA AT BAR OF THE LEAGUE.

COUNCIL IN JUDGMENT ON THE MANCHURIAN CONFLICT.

CHINA ACCUSES JAPAN OF DUPLICITY.

POLICY AIMING AT DOMINATION OF ASIA.

A CRUCIAL session of the League of Nations Council opened yesterday at Geneva, when, under the presidency of Mr. de Valera, discussion of the Lytton Report on Manchuria began.

After hearing the observations of the Japanese and Chinese delegates, Mr. de Valera adjourned the general debate until to-morrow, to enable the members of the Council to study the two statements, which were couched in courteous and dignified English.

Mr. Matsuoka's speech followed the general lines of the Japanese memorandum published yesterday. He painted a picture of a disorganised China, and suggested that the Chinese boycott of Japan should be condemned by the League.

Dr. Wellington Koo said that, if all that Mr. Matsuoka said were true, Japan would appear to be the meek lamb in the teeth of a ferocious China.

Behind the apparent instability of conditions in China, said Dr. Koo, there was a fundamental unity of purpose on the part of the Chinese people, but the task of unification had repeatedly been made more difficult by Japanese interference.

He claimed that Japan's foreign policy was a serious menace to the peace of the whole world.

THE LAMB AND THE LION.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Monday.

THE Council Chamber of the League was packed this morning when Mr. de Valera opened the public meeting.

Mr. de Valera at once called upon Mr. Matsuoka, the Japanese delegate, to offer his observations on the Lytton report, adding that a similar opportunity would be given to the Chinese delegate at the meeting of the Council in the afternoon.

Mr. Matsuoka said that Japan did not share the somewhat optimistic and hopeful attitude of the Commission regarding conditions in China, and drew a picture of rival military leaders usually called "War Lords." Outer Mongolia had become Sovietised, Tibet was at war with China, Turkestan had almost entirely cut off connection, Shantung was suffering from the conflict of military leaders, Canton was independent and hostile, while the National Government controlled with its military force only the provinces at the mouth of the Yangtse River.

BOYCOTT WEAPON.

Referring to the Chinese boycott of Japan, Mr. Matsuoka suggested that it should be condemned and outlawed by the League.

He disclaimed the idea that seemed sometimes latent in the report that Japan entertained feelings of bitterness and hostility towards the Chinese people.

"The Japanese Government," he said, "believe that the main desire of the Chinese people is to enjoy in peace and quiet the results of their industry, but they have been misled, terrorised, and misrepresented."

Mr. Matsuoka then dealt at length with the Manchurian problem and the creation of Manchukuo, which he denied was due to Japanese initiative. On the contrary, he said it was entirely due to the people's wish to be rid of the "Changs" (Marshal Chang Tso-lin and Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang). He admitted that the new Government would have difficulty in establishing itself without Japanese troops, but, he asked, how could the Nationalist Government be set up in Nanking without arms, men and money from abroad?

TERRITORY NOT WANTED.

Finally, Mr. Matsuoka asked the Council to look at the record of Japan since she opened her doors to foreign intercourse eighty years ago, declaring that, on the other hand, the condition of China had been a menace to the peace of the world for many years. He asked the Council for a little of the patience and a fraction of the tolerance bestowed by the Western world so generously on China, which, he said, would be gratefully received.

"We do not want war," he said. "We do not want more territory. We are not aggressors. We desire deeply and earnestly the welfare of our great neighbour."

The Manchukuo Government, continued Mr. Matsuoka, was barely eleven months old. Yet the civil administration was the first the country had known since the fall of the Manchu dynasty. The paper currency of the present Government was already at a premium. The suppression of banditry, he admitted, was not yet fully accomplished; but banditry had been a professional business in Manchuria for scores of years, and it was unreasonable to expect its suppression in a few months.

FUNDAMENTAL UNITY.

On the conclusion of the Japanese delegate's address the Council adjourned until the afternoon, when Dr. Wellington Koo, the Chinese delegate, took up the cudgels on behalf of his country.

If all that Mr. Matsuoka had said were true, Japan would appear to be a meek lamb in the teeth of a ferocious China.

Japan had constantly complained of the situation in China, but he doubted whether these complaints justified the occupation of a country of the size of Manchuria. Japan had finally claimed to have acted from the legitimate motive of defence, and had invoked the Kellogg Pact to justify her action.

China was content to learn at the hands of the Council whether the Pact could be interpreted to cover the invasion of Manchuria.

Dr. Koo went on to say that behind the apparent instability of conditions in China was a fundamental unity of purpose on the part of the Chinese people, but the task of unification had repeatedly been made more difficult by Japan's dread of a united China. Her traditional policy had been to interfere to prevent Chinese unification, while complaining loudly abroad of a disunited China.

POLICY OF EXPANSION.

"This," he said, "is Japan's so-called continental policy of expansion, which aims at the domination and conquest of Asia through the successive stages of controlling Korea, Formosa, Manchuria, Mongolia, North China, South China, the South Seas and the territories beyond.

"This policy is a serious menace to peace in the Far East and a disturbing factor to the rest of the world."

Nevertheless, in spite of Japanese propaganda and hostility, Chinese foreign trade during the last twenty years, he claimed, had increased from 849,000,000 taels to 2,204,000,000 taels—an increase of 158 per cent.

Dr. Koo then defended the boycott of Japan, which he described as a measure involving much sacrifice on the part of China's nationals. To deny China the use of the boycott against such Japanese military aggression as had been going on in Manchuria for over a year would be the denial of a peaceful and legitimate instrument of defence.

Dealing with the charge of anti-foreign sentiment in China, which he denied, Dr. Wellington Koo pointed to the fact that there were 360,000 foreign nationals and over 8,200 foreign firms in China living and working in peace.

Coming to the situation in Manchuria, Dr. Koo, after quoting extensively from the Lytton report, said that Japan's recognition of the so-called Government of Manchukuo was a striking act of defiance of her solemn engagements under the Covenant of the League and international treaties. The Chinese Government was ready to take as a basis of discussion any recognition in conformity with the provisions of the League Pact, the Pact of Paris, and the Nine-Power Treaty of Washington, but she renounced none of her rights possessed before Japanese aggression, and claimed that it would be inadmissible for the aggressive nation to benefit from its policy of aggression.

REPARATIONS CLAIM.

The Chinese Government also reserved the right of claiming reparations for damages resulting from the aggression.

In conclusion Dr. Wellington Koo said: "More than a year has elapsed, and this delay has meant to China tens of thousands more innocent lives killed and literally millions of dollars more of property destroyed in consequence of the continued aggravation of the whole situation by Japan through her extended military operations in Manchuria, Shanghai and Tientsin.

"It has brought us to a state which is not only a danger to the existence of China, but is also a challenge to the League itself. It is only by speedy settlement of this conflict, in conformity with the principles of justice and right, which are clearly provided for in the international instruments more than once referred to, that China hopes to have her wrongs redressed and the peace of the world safeguarded."

At the conclusion of Dr. Wellington Koo's speech Mr. de Valera adjourned the Council until 3.30 on Wednesday afternoon, stating that the members of the Council would, no doubt, wish to study the observations presented by the Chinese and Japanese representatives before embarking upon a general discussion.

AIRMAN MAROONED FOR A WEEK.

FLIGHT TO ENGLAND RESUMED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Monday.

Mr. Victor Smith, the nineteen years old South African airman, who has reappeared after being lost for a week on his Cape to England flight, still has a chance to beat the "record" of eleven days set up by the Duchess of Bedford and Captain Barnard.

It is just possible that Mr. Smith might be in England to-morrow, and he has up till midnight on Tuesday to beat the Duchess's time.

Mr. Smith had not been heard of since he left Duala, in the Cameroons, to fly over the dense jungle to Gao, in French West Africa.

After leaving Duala, it appears, he made a landing at Dori, 150 miles south-west of Gao, and this morning came the news that he had left Gao on the next stage of his flight.

The President and Council of the Royal Academy have purchased, under the terms of the Chantrey Bequest, the self-portrait by Professor Frederick Brown in the exhibition of the New English Art Club, New Burlington Galleries.

THE chief business in the Dail this week will be the committee stage of the Cereals Bill, to which over 200 amendments have been put down.

The Senate will have a full agenda for consideration when it meets to-morrow. The items include: Pilotage By-Law Compensation Bill, report; Therapeutic Substances Bill, second stage; Army Pensions Bill, second stage; Control of Prices Bill, second stage; Appropriation Bill, committee. In addition there is the motion by Senator Gogarty. The amendment to this motion, which was tendered by Senator Foran, was not considered in order, and does not, therefore, appear on the paper.

THE BY-ELECTIONS.

There is some reason to believe that the Fianna Fail Party are not now so keen to have the by-elections in Waterford, East Cork and Donegal before Christmas as they appeared to be last week. It may be that the visits of Ministers to the South during the week's end resulted in the discovery that local views on the subject were not at all so enthusiastic for early contests. If notice of intention to move the writs is not given in the Dail this week it may be taken that the elections will go over to the New Year.

POTATO-GROWING IN COUNTY LOUTH.

A FREE MARKET AND BOUNTIES WANTED.

The grievances of the potato-growers and exporters of Cooley, Co. Louth, were represented to the Free State Minister for Agriculture, Dr. Ryan, at Government Buildings yesterday afternoon. The deputations representing growers and exporters urged on the Minister the desirability of reducing the scheduled "scab" area; of providing a free market for potatoes throughout the Free State, and of providing bounties equivalent to the amount of the British tariff on potatoes sent to Great Britain. The question of arranging for seed production was also under consideration.

The deputations appeared to be satisfied with the assurances given them. They were hopeful that their claims regarding the bounty will be met at the earliest moment. They also expressed satisfaction regarding a successful outcome of the discussion of the other matters brought forward.

It is understood that already 4,000 tons of potatoes have been exported from the area, and that there are still 6,000 tons to be marketed.

Among the deputations were:—The Rev. J. O'Brien, Omeath; Messrs. J. Coburn, T.D.; H. MacGee, Co. Council; J. P. Kearney, Joseph Nelson, Seumas O'Hanlon, Thomas Rice, Joseph McCann, John Murphy, James Quinn, Thomas Mackin, James O'Hare and Philip McArdle.

PROBLEMS OF THE FRANCHISE.

INDIAN ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE.

Lord Sankey, the Lord Chancellor, presided when the Indian Round-Table Conference met yesterday at the House of Lords.

Preliminaries were brief, and the Conference entered upon consideration at morning and afternoon sessions of questions concerning the franchise in the new constitution.

Concerning the method of electing members of the Provincial Legislatures, it was pointed out that the Lothian Committee had reported that adult suffrage was at present impracticable. The method recommended by the Lothian Committee was the extension of the franchise by the direct vote. The general opinion of the Conference was that the Franchise Committee's recommendation should be accepted. One member of the Conference, however, favoured adult suffrage. Another expressed a preference of the group system; another was in favour of indirect election through electoral colleges.

The problem of the representation of the depressed classes—the "untouchables"—speedily confronted the Conference. The Conference agreed that the aim should be to enfranchise ten per cent. of the depressed class population in each province, and that this result should be reached by adopting differential qualifications from among those suggested by the Lothian Committee, in the light of the varying conditions in each province.

A discussion of the general qualifications of women for the vote was adjourned until to-day. The proposed general qualifications would enfranchise only a relatively small percentage of women. The Conference has to consider whether special strengthening of the women's vote is necessary, and, if so, how it should be effected.

After considering the method of election to, and the franchise for, the provincial legislatures the Conference will discuss the question of the British-Indian seats in the Federal Legislature.

ARMS CONFERENCE DEADLOCK.

NEGOTIATING TO BRING GERMANY BACK.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Monday.

Between the two sessions of the League Council to-day Baron von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister, called on Sir John Simon, the British Foreign Secretary, and spent nearly an hour with him. This evening Baron von Neurath dined with Mr. Norman Davis, the American representative.

It is gathered that the talks revolved around the question of France's endorsement of the British declaration of policy on the question of equality of rights. The British formula on this question in principle is regarded as an acceptable basis of discussion to Germany, and the fact that it was endorsed by Italy and other States is welcomed. But France made reservation, and until Germany has received assurance of France's attitude she is not likely to budge from her present position.

It is understood that M. Herriot may come in person to Geneva on Wednesday next, and remain here for two or three days.

There was a meeting of the Committee of the Bureau of the Disarmament Conference this afternoon, but no decision was reached as to the date of the meeting of the General Commission. It is understood that the result of the pourparlers with Baron von Neurath will be awaited before any decision is taken.

Hindenburg's Five Points.

CURBING THE POWER OF THE NAZIS.

ADOLF HITLER is not yet Chancellor of the German Republic. The prospects of his becoming so are still remote.

The Nazi leader and his chief lieutenants were working yesterday afternoon and evening on the replies to be submitted to President von Hindenburg's conditions for his assent to Hitler as Chancellor.

When the conference of Nazi leaders adjourned it was announced that a number of counter-questions had been submitted to President Hindenburg, to which answers are expected to-day.

These counter-questions are not yet known, but the conditions which the President imposes have become public knowledge. They are:—

1—That the Cabinet must have the President's approval.

2—That the President reserves the right to nominate the Foreign Minister and the Minister of Defence in the Cabinet (von Neurath and von Schleicher).

3—That the Government's economic programme must be approved by the President.

4—That a guarantee must be given that there is no return to the system of "dualism" between the Reich and Prussia.

5—That no attempt will be made by the new Cabinet to diminish the powers given to the President by Article 48 of the Constitution.

MAJORITY PROBLEMATICAL

Hitler is making desperate efforts to formulate his answers in a manner that will satisfy Hindenburg, but it is well known in political circles that the Nazi leader's prospects of forming a Cabinet on these terms are small. Even should he agree to them in toto, which is not believed to be possible, he will be confronted with the difficulty of finding a Parliamentary majority to support him.

The Centre Party is not by any means enthusiastic to join a coalition with the Nazis, while the German Nationals, under Hugenberg, are definitely hostile. Hugenberg has refused the invitation to meet Goering, the Nazi Reichstag President, to discuss matters with him.

Consequently, it is the general impression that Hitler's efforts to obtain office will fail.

The Reichstag deputy Moder was sentenced to six and a half years, with hard labour, telegraphs Reuter's Berlin Correspondent, as the organiser of terrorist acts in Schleswig-Holstein on the day after the Reichstag election in July, when hand grenades were thrown at the houses of political opponents.

Over twenty other Nazis received sentences ranging from six and a half years' to one month's imprisonment for participating in this and similar outrages in various parts of Germany.

It was stated in court that the terrorists thought that they would be immune from the consequences of their actions because the Nazis would be in power as the result of the election.

DUBLIN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

ANXIETY FOR FUTURE OF COUNTRY'S TRADE.

At a meeting held yesterday the Council of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce continued its discussion, adjourned from November 14th, on the economic situation.

The following resolution was passed unanimously:—

"The Council regard with increasing anxiety the effect on the trade of the country of the present monetary struggle with Great Britain, which, if continued, must lead by rapid process of financial exhaustion to annihilation of our external trade and permanent and substantial diminution of our internal trade.

"The cessation on November 15th of free entry of Irish Free State goods into Great Britain and Northern Ireland, resulting from failure to make agreements at Ottawa, aggravates injuries already inflicted on the whole economic structure of the Irish Free State.

"The Council claims that this country cannot maintain, except for a very short time, the present intense system of export bounties, and urges on the Government the necessity for an early settlement of the matters in dispute with Great Britain."

FROM THE CAPE TO ENGLAND.

JOINT FLIGHT BY MR. AND MRS. MOLLISON.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mollison are likely to make a dual attempt, with their own machines, to break the Cape Town-England "record."

Mrs. Mollison will fly in Desert Cloud, the 'plane in which she beat her husband's "record" to South Africa, and Mr. Mollison in Heart's Content, in which he set up the long flight Atlantic "record" from East to West.

Plans for this flight were revealed last night by Mr. Mollison. "Nothing is definite yet," he said, "but the idea we have will mean that this time Amy and I will be out to establish a joint "record," yet in our own machines.

"I have just had a cable from my wife asking for weather particulars and other information for her flight back to England. I have been doing a little quiet thinking, and I do not see why we should not this time both smash a 'record.'

"I have cabled her my plan, and now I am going to wait and see what she thinks."

EXPORT TURKEY TRADE.

NO ABNORMAL SHIPPING.

Only one consignment of turkeys was shipped from the North Wall to Great Britain yesterday.

It was thought, in view of the bounty of 4d. per pound on dead turkeys, and 2d. per pound on other dead poultry, which came into operation yesterday, that there would be a rush of exports. This did not prove to be the case, as only one lot of turkeys was exported, and shipments of other fowl were normal.

The announcement of the bounty appears to have come too late to allow of any extensive purchases of turkeys for export yesterday, and it is not expected that there will be any abnormal consignments of poultry for Great Britain until the end of this week.

Three bullocks, alleged to have been imported from the Free State into Northern Ireland by a Londonderry dealer, were seized on a farm at Cosquin. A cart-load of poultry, consisting of forty dozen ducks and hens, was also seized at the border by police, who took possession of the horse and cart.

LIVERPOOL SEIZURE.

BIG BATCH OF SWEEP TICKETS.

QUESTION OF LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

OUR Liverpool Correspondent was officially informed yesterday that there had been a big seizure of Irish sweepstake tickets, but the precise value was not revealed. The question of legal proceedings, it is stated, is under consideration. "We have had a large seizure of these tickets," said a collector of Customs and Excise (Mr. T. J. D. Large) to our correspondent, "but it is only one of many, and we are always on the look-out for these tickets. Customs officers have been specially instructed to be vigilant in their search for Irish sweepstake tickets, which have been found in passengers' baggage, and also hidden away in vessels after the passengers have left. Scarcely a week passes without a consignment being seized."

Inquiries show that all sorts of ruses are adopted to get sweepstake tickets into England; sometimes they are ostensibly chocolate and other goods, and members of the crews of vessels trading between Ireland and England are often the custodians of tickets. After the examination of the luggage of passengers, and even after a surprise search of the ship by Customs officers, tickets are brought ashore when the ship is in dock and few people are about.

The face value of the tickets seized last week is believed to be nearly one hundred thousand pounds.

At one time the many confiscations of tickets at Liverpool resulted in the traffic being diverted to North Wales ports.

DUBLIN'S MILK SUPPLIES.

DISTRIBUTORS AND PRODUCERS CONFER.

In connection with the demand by dairy farmers for an economic price for their milk during the winter, the case for both sides was submitted at a conference between milk producers and Dublin distributors held in the offices of the Department of Industry and Commerce, Lord Edward street, Dublin, yesterday, under the chairmanship of Mr. O'Sullivan, an official of the Department.

Producers complain that as compared with last year, distributors are offering an average of twopence per gallon less for winter milk, and also that the present maximum price extends only over a proportion of the milk taken from farmers, the surplus being paid for at a lower rate, although it is claimed that the distributor can use and sell this at the highest figure.

THE TWO SIDES.

At yesterday's conference the distributors stated their side of the case, and gave particulars of the prices which they are paying for milk from their suppliers. The firms represented were Messrs. Hughes Bros., Craigie Bros., the Lucan Dairy, and the Dublin Wholesale and Retail Milk Vendors' Association.

The suppliers produced figures showing what farmers are receiving for their milk from the different distributors, and were represented by the Leinster Milk Producers' Association, which embraces the Counties of Wicklow, Wexford, Kildare, Meath and Louth.

The delegates present were:—Messrs. C. M. Byrne, who spoke for the County Wexford; Capt. Newsome, Mr. E. Byrne, Wicklow; Mr. E. Byrne, Beauparc; Mr. P. Slattery, Dublin; Mr. J. Tyner, Wicklow; and Mr. E. O'Sullivan, Wicklow.

After an hour's conference, further discussion of the matter in dispute was postponed until Friday next for the attendance of representatives from the Department of Agriculture, the County Dublin Farmers' Protection Association, and the Dublin Dairymen and Cowkeepers' Association.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE NEW SESSION.

In a leading article The Times to-day states:—Technically speaking, a new session of Parliament begins to-day, but practically speaking there has been no change in the character of the problems confronting this Parliament, nor, it may be hoped, will there be any change in the spirit with which it has so far approached its work. The legislative output of the new session will consist mainly of measures which have admittedly great economic importance, but a less dramatic appearance. A Rent Restriction Bill will carry the decontrol of houses a stage farther, and, it may be hoped, will stimulate the re-entry of private enterprise into building. An Unemployment Insurance Bill will recast the system of insurance and of State relief on lines which must be more carefully thought out than in its many predecessors. An agricultural policy, which has so far produced an adjustable programme of tariffs, quotas and a voluntary restriction of meat imports, will have to develop less temporary measures of protection and reorganisation.

Next summer highly important provisions of the Coal Mines Act are due for revision, and may well require a major bill. The finance of the year will also be unusually important; for it will have to reflect whether further progress can, or cannot, be made in the settlement of international debts, whether retrenchment can, or cannot, make possible a vitally necessary reduction in taxation, and whether there are any directions in which the State can usefully employ a credit so painfully restored without again endangering it.

Much other important work, however, falls to be done outside Parliament, whether at the more formal international conference now in being and in prospect, or in the administrative work required to round off measures already passed. The new session opens amid a host of uncertainties, but certainly not in an atmosphere of despair; for neither the present Government nor the present Parliament have ever lost sight of the need of preserving the balance and the relation between domestic and international policy. The continuance and the character of a National Government remain firmly based upon the conviction of the bulk of the present House of Commons, that an all-party administration is the best instrument that democracy can produce for critical times. The past, the present and the future unite to indicate that this conviction is wise, and that the experiment will not be lightly interrupted.

MEATH HUNT ACCIDENT.

While hunting yesterday with the Meath Hounds Miss Kathleen O'Brien, daughter of Mr. William O'Brien, Oldtown, four miles from Navan, was accidentally thrown from her horse, and sustained severe head injuries. She was removed to Meath County Infirmary, Navan, in an unconscious condition. She recovered consciousness later, but her condition was stated last night to be serious.

DISSATISFIED RAILWAYMEN.

CALL TO DAIL LABOUR PARTY.

THE DISMISSAL OF THE GOVERNMENT.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

WATERFORD, Monday.

RAILWAYMEN in Waterford express keen dissatisfaction at the result of an interview which a deputation on their behalf had with Mr. Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, before a public meeting here last night. So great was their disappointment that the delegation held a meeting of protest this afternoon, and passed a strongly-worded resolution.

The proceedings at the interview were not open to the Press, but an official report, issued to-day, says that the deputation reminded the Minister of the promises made by the Government in their election campaign in February last, to the effect that the revival of the railway industry could not be realised unless the railways were preserved; that the defeat of the Cumann na nGaedheal Government would be the means of putting a pro-railway Government in office, and that Fianna Fail would eliminate wasteful competition.

THE RESOLUTION.

Evidently these reminders had little effect on the Minister's mind; for, at the protest meeting afterwards, the following resolution was unanimously passed:—

"That this meeting, representative of railwaymen of three trades unions—the N.U.R., the A.S.L.E. and F. and the R.C.A.—after an interview accorded us by Mr. Lemass, expresses its keenest disappointment at the attitude displayed by the Government on the transport problem. We call on the representatives of our respective trades unions and the Executive of the Irish Labour Party to bring pressure to bear on the Labour Party in the Dail to consider the advisability of the immediate dismissal of the Government by the Labour Party if legislation favourable to railwaymen is not forthcoming without delay."

THE SITUATION IN DUBLIN.

CONFERENCE AT KINGSBRIDGE.

There is some fear in certain railway union quarters that there may be repetitions of the railway crisis of Sunday night in other centres in the near future.

It has come to light that an actual stoppage had taken place at the North Wall at the time at which the settlement was arrived at at Kingsbridge.

A meeting between representatives of the company and Mr. Watters, secretary, National Union of Railwaymen, was held at Kingsbridge yesterday evening. The situation which had given rise to the strike threat was not gone into, but it was stated that the notices served on the thirteen workers at Kingsbridge had been withdrawn. No information is available regarding the other notices which have been served.

STRIKE IN DUBLIN DRAPERY FIRM.

300 WORKERS CALLED OUT FROM MESSRS. ARNOTT AND CO.

About 300 workers, members of the Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks, withdrew their labour as from closing time last night from Messrs. Arnott and Co., general drapers, Henry street, Dublin.

This action was taken as the result of the dismissal of two women employés with long service.

A last-minute effort to avert the strike was made yesterday, when the parties met in conference, but without result.

An official of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union, who have also some members employed by the firm, stated that that union had not taken any decision on the question at issue, but was awaiting events.

A meeting to arrange for picketing, etc., was held at the headquarters of the union last night.

In an interview with an Irish Times representative last night, a director of Messrs. Arnott said: "The firm stands for the right to make any readjustments in the staff considered necessary for the efficient conduct of the business. This right is denied. When, in the carrying out of this policy, any case deserving of special consideration has arisen, they have always acted generously. In the present instance there has been no departure from this practice, and no change is contemplated."

HIGH TREASON TRIAL IN SPAIN.

PARTICIPANTS IN THE DICTATORSHIP.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MADRID, Monday.

Nine years after the coup d'état which swept Primo de Rivera into power, those who participated in the movement and the subsequent military dictatorship are to stand their trial for high treason.

Don Alfonso will not, however, be among the accused persons.

The trial, which will be held before a Special Responsibilities Court, composed of twenty-one deputies, opens to-morrow. The penalty asked is deportation and deprivation of civil rights for life.

The long list of defendants includes Generals Jose Cavalcanti, who figured prominently in the revolt of August 10th; Federico Berenguer, brother of the later dictator, and Leopold Saro, who returned to Spain recently from Manila to give himself up. This trio figured in the first dictatorship.

While most of the persons cited to stand trial are in prison, some of them are in exile, including Jose Calvo Sotelo, who was mentioned with the millionaire, Juan March, in connection with alleged irregularities in the granting of an African concession.

BELFAST MAN ON INDIAN MURDER CHARGE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

AHMEDABAD, Monday.

Sergeant Houston, of the Ahmedabad Police, was charged to-day with shooting dead Inspector Green and with attempting to murder witnesses. He was remanded until November 30th.

On returning from duty on November 7th he is alleged to have walked straight into the residential quarters, passed into Inspector Green's room, and to have shot the inspector through the heart at point-blank range. He is then alleged to have run amuck in the compound, firing in all forty-eight rounds.

Sergeant Houston is stated to be a native of Belfast.

BORDER TARIFFS AND TRADE.

HOW DONEGAL IS SUFFERING.

NEED OF A DEEP-SEA PORT.

COUNTY THROWN ON ITS OWN RESOURCES.

FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

LIFFORD, Monday.

"TWENTY-FIVE counties and Donegal," was a description of the Irish Free State given to me by a Donegal man to-day. The county, for the most part, has been left out of the general scheme of operations of Government departments, say the residents, and is left to fend for itself in a strange manner when it is remembered that Donegal was the home of many men who worked consistently for the establishment of an independent Ireland.

The narrow corridor between the Free State-Northern Ireland frontier and the Atlantic seaboard is, apart from access through Northern Ireland—foreign territory—the only link that Donegal has with the country of which it is, by legislation, an integral part, and its distance from the seat of Government results in many strange occurrences. Not long ago a letter was received from a Free State Government department by a resident in the county on a question which arose over a small townland which lies in Donegal. The department "regretted" that the townland was outside its jurisdiction, as it was in Northern Ireland. Comments on the geographical knowledge of civil servants naturally became particularly sarcastic in that district.

ALL IMPORTS BY RAIL.

There is little doubt that the county has been one of the hardest hit by the tariff campaign instituted by the Government, for it lacks a suitable seaport through which to make its imports, and everything must come by rail through Northern Ireland, whether it is being shipped from Dublin with the "Free to Free" Customs forms, which have become so familiar to the people, or an importation made through a seaport. Rail traffic rates are so high that merchants throughout Donegal have found it cheaper, in many cases, to import goods from Northern Ireland and pay the necessary duty rather than pay carriage on merchandise from the Irish Free State. Matches and coals, two essential commodities of modern civilisation, are both purchased from England through Northern Ireland.

One merchant told me that he would purchase German coal, or any other coal on which he had not to pay the duty, but since there is no port through which it can be imported he must pay the tariff on English coal or the carriage from Dublin or some other port, and this would be considerably in excess of the duty.

The hardships of the border are felt by many in County Donegal. The women must go many more miles to the stores for their groceries, and cattle have to travel much further to reach the markets, whereas the natural shopping places and markets are a few minutes away over the border. Lifford and Strabane, barely a mile apart, are towns mutually dependent, but to-day Strabane merchants are in despair, while their friends across the River Foyle trudge weary miles to make duty-free purchases. Bartering of produce—eggs and poultry for flour and tea—took place on a fairly large scale between the countryfolk of Donegal and shops in Strabane. Now this trade has been stopped by the tariffs on both sides of the border, and the fall in prices for poultry in the Free State has resulted in poorer conditions for the people of Donegal.

There has been much talk of a deep-sea port for Donegal, and Killybegs has been suggested for this purpose. If Donegal is to continue to exist despite the tariffs something must be done to provide a port for the county in order that the people may live. It will need many thousands of pounds to make Killybegs suitable for a seaport to handle the trade of the county, and the present shortage of finances will make it a difficult proposition.

PROFITABLE CROPS.

The harsh climate of this northern outpost of the Free State is too severe to permit of the successful operation of the wheat scheme promoted by the Minister for Agriculture. The farmers of the district say that only root crops can be grown with real hope of profit. Potatoes can be grown profitably, but when these crops are raised they must be exported either by rail, with the ensuing complications at the Customs and high transport rates, to the Free State or by sea through a port which does not exist at the present time.

The wind-swept hills offer little food for cattle, and this winter many of the stall-fed cattle, kept for the purpose of providing milk for families, will be fed on potatoes instead of mangels. The potatoes had a market value in the past, but the retaliatory tariffs imposed by England have reduced this value to such an extent that the potatoes cannot be sent outside the county boundaries without loss to the grower. The present price for potatoes is lower than that for mangels.

Resentment against the Irish attitude to Britain is said to be responsible for the falling-off of orders from the English tailors and clothing manufacturers for the world-famous Donegal tweeds. There is no doubt that orders have fallen off within the past few months and that unless the markets can be speedily recovered by lower prices, which appears to be impossible in view of the costs of production, or some other encouragement to the English buyers, the manufacturers will suffer badly.

Railway companies operating in Donegal have found that their revenue has been sadly depleted since the institution of the tariff walls, which are becoming higher and are gradually making partition between Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State more and more definite. Rail traffic has fallen to a considerable extent, and the officials to whom I talked predicted a still further drop before the end of the year. There is nothing more likely to promote friendly relations between the people of two countries than trade, and now this trade has, for the most part, been taken away and a steadily growing animosity between the peoples of North and South is replacing the friendliness which once bound them together.

RAIL AND ROAD TRANSPORT.

GREAT NORTHERN COMPANY'S PLAN.

LORRY GOODS TRAFFIC NEARLY DOUBLED.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

A COMPREHENSIVE plan for door-to-door transport, organised by the Great Northern Railway a few months ago, has been fully justified by results, so far as the northern portion of their railway system is concerned, as the traffic carried by the road lorries to the various rail heads has been nearly doubled since June last.

Altogether, over 100 lorries are employed in these services, which cover specified routes once per day, embracing every village in Northern Ireland that can be served by the Great Northern Railway system. These lorries cover twenty thousand miles per week, and provide a door-to-door transport system (combined road and rail) between a great many towns and villages in Northern Ireland.

CAUSE OF WASTAGE.

Addressing the Portadown Chamber of Commerce to-night, Mr. J. Lockhart, M.Inst.T., urged the important bearing which the volume of traffic had upon combined railway and motor transport rates.

"The wastage attending transport to-day," he said, "arises from the amount of it available in relation to the quantity of goods to be transported. The development of the internal combustion engine has opened a new avenue of transport by road, which, by reason of its undoubted advantages in some respects, has developed amazingly. This new method of transport has, without doubt, created some new business for itself, but it is beyond question that it has also largely eaten in to the better class transport which was formerly carried by rail. At the same time, the number of road hauliers competing with one another has had the effect of reducing road rates below an economic level. You have then a situation where the road is not making any profit, while the railway has been crippled by reduced earnings. Neither can continue to exist indefinitely and continue to provide public service when outgoings do not meet incomings, and it is only a matter of time, and a very short time at that, when the community will be faced with yet another crisis—a breakdown in transport.

"Between loss of traffic to road, loss of traffic on account of cross-border tariffs and depression of trade, the position of the Great Northern Railway is very serious, indeed. As you will see from the published weekly returns, our receipts are down by about £5,000 to £6,000 per week, and you can understand that no economies, however drastic, can meet this loss while, at the same time, maintaining the standard of service the public are accustomed to get from us.

PUBLIC UTILITY BASIS.

"My studies, and what experience it has been my privilege to acquire, convince me that the only way the public can have a system of transport, satisfactory and economically sound, functioning with the maximum of efficiency in speed and other respects and at the lowest cost, is for transport to be treated on a public utility basis. I speak as a transport man, not as a railway man, when I say that I visualise the future system as a happy combination of rail and road, with the rail as the backbone and the road supplying flexible tentacles for bringing passengers and goods to the rail centres, to be carried by rail for the main part of their transit.

"The Great Northern Railway has done as much as it possibly can in the existing circumstances to bring this about, but full fruition cannot be attained without legislation, and it is up to the public to see that the requisite legislation is forthcoming."

TROTSKY'S SECRET LANDING.

POLICE PRECAUTIONS IN FRANCE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MARSEILLES, Monday.

In the greatest secrecy, Leon Trotsky, the exiled former Bolshevik leader, was brought ashore near Marseilles to-day from the Italian steamer Praga and taken by motor car to Lyons, whence he is continuing his journey to Copenhagen. He will lecture there on the Russian Revolution.

Before the liner docked Trotsky was taken off in a police launch some ten miles out at sea. The French authorities had thought it better for him not to set foot in a Mediterranean port.

While the Praga steamed on in the direction of Marseilles the launch turned in the opposite direction, and Trotsky and his party landed at a deserted spot where two motors were waiting.

While the luggage was being stowed away Trotsky talked with Reuter's correspondent of his work and his plans for the future.

"For the past four years in Turkey," said Trotsky, "I have been reading hard and writing my history of the Russian Revolution, which is now in the Press. The students of Copenhagen, on their own initiative, asked me to give a lecture on what the October Revolution really was. I shall address them in German.

"I am not going on a propaganda tour, but for scientific purposes. My opinion is the same as it was before the October Revolution in 1927.

"After a short stay in Denmark we shall return to Prinkipo."

THE ABBEY THEATRE.

A NEW PLAY OF THE SEA.

Brigid Boyle	Ann Clery
Hughie Boyle	W. O'Gorman
Fanny Brian	Christine Hayden
Kitty Cormac	Bel Johnston
Paddy Cormac	Joseph Linnane
Johnny Anthon	Fred Johnson
Corney	Eric Gorman

Watching Mr. Peadar O'Donnell's first venture on the stage at the Abbey Theatre last night, one is reminded of Synge's "Riders to the Sea." "Wrack" is obviously the work of a novelist, rather than a dramatist, but, on the whole, it makes a good play.

Of plot, in the generally accepted sense, there is little or none; the sea is the villain of the piece, and the only dramatic conflict is between the sea and those who get their living by it. It is at the back of everyone's thoughts on the island; the men look to it with hope, waiting for the arrival of the herrings which will give them some respite from the hunger and poverty that oppresses them; the women hate and fear it.

The play is occupied with the development of this theme for the first few scenes, and it is not until the point arrives where "Peter Dan" and his men decide to take their boats out on chance of a catch that the plot really starts to develop. The weather is fair, and, in spite of the premonitions of the old woman, Fanny Brian, they set out, only to have one of the boats wrecked in a gale which suddenly springs up.

That is really all there is in "Wrack" as regards the plot, but as a picture of life in the desolate parts of Ireland it has great merit. The outlook and the speech of these people, as depicted by the dramatist, have the ring of truth about them, and there is one impressive outburst by Brigid Boyle in the third act.

At the same time, "Wrack" has considerable shortcomings, and easily the most serious of these is the scene on Johnny Anthon's boat. The staging and the sound effects were defective, but the truth is that such a scene is almost incapable of being portrayed on a small stage.

Miss Ann Clery is a real find for the Abbey Company. Last night she gave a really fine performance as Brigid Boyle. W. O'Gorman as her husband, was good. Fred. Johnson, Eric Gorman and Bel Johnson were all satisactory, but Christine Hayden had a disappointing rôle.

The play was followed by Martin McHugh's one-act comedy, "A Minute's Wait," an old favourite with Abbey audiences.

LABOUR LEADER'S BOAST.

"NO COMMUNISM IN THIS COUNTRY."

FROM OUR REPORTER.

NEWBRIDGE, Monday.

"BECAUSE we have urged the relief of unemployment in a big and vigorous way," said Mr. William Norton, T.D., at a meeting here to-night, "we have been accused of urging the abolition of private property. There are people who are branding hungry men and women as Communists merely because they are looking for bread and work. Last year they were told that there were thousands of of Communists in Dublin, and that all through the country there were Communists spreading anti-religious and anti-God doctrines, but when a professed Communist stood as a candidate for election in Dublin he only got 178 votes. The people who make these lying statements should be kicked out of the community. There is no such thing as Communism in this country. Those who say that they are Communists are only hair-brained people who want the public to stand and look after them.

"There is no Communism," said Mr. Norton, "because the Irish working-classes think too much of their Catholic faith (for which they had made great sacrifices) to take part in any anti-God campaign in the country." The inspiring spectacle which many of them had witnessed in June last was an answer to those who said that there was Communism in their midst. It was a foul libel on those who were entitled to a decent means of h elihood. The Labour Party did not preach the abolition of private property, but they demanded a wider distribution of property.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

Mr. Norton went on to say that there was no excuse for unemployment if the resources of the country were organised in a comprehensive way on Christian and Catholic principles. During the past eight months the Labour Party had urged the Government to deal with the unemployment as a matter of national emergency, by speeding up schemes of industrial development, by concentrating on a tillage policy which would provide food and work, and by tackling on a large scale public works that would give immediate and continuous employment. The present Government had done more for the relief of unemployment, under pressure from the Labour Party, than the last. Of the two millions available for relief, £23,000 had been allocated to County Kildare, and if that was not sufficient there was no reason why more money should not come from the same source.

There was no reason why they should have any unemployment if the Government would only organise the country's industrial and agricultural resources, and initiate on a large scale schemes of public work. So far as the Labour Party was concerned, it would continue strongly to press the Government to take more vigorous steps in this matter.

KEEPING IN THE GOVERNMENT.

The Labour Party was keeping the present Government in power, because, under pressure from the Labour Party, the Government was doing some of the things which he wanted done; and, looking over the past eight months, he thought it would be agreed that the Labour Party was wise. They had succeeded in getting passed the best Housing Act that had ever seen the light in this country. It was now possible for the Kildare Board of Health to start building houses under this Act on 1st January next, and a start would be made with 250, but pressure would be brought on the Board of Health to do more.

The Government, by agreement with the Labour Party, had set up a Commission to discover the most suitable means of providing widows' and orphans' pensions, and he hoped that the report of the Commission would be followed by legislation providing such pensions for widows and orphans as would save them from seeking Home Help or going into the workhouse. It would not be the fault of the Labour Party if such legislation was not introduced.

Also, with the assistance of the Labour Party, old age pensions had been improved at an additional cost of three-quarters of a million, while another result of pressure from the Labour Party was the provision of £100,000 for milk for necessitous children.

BRITAIN BLAMED.

In the economic war, he said, the Labour Party wanted an honourable settlement, and made great efforts to secure it, but the British Government prevented a peaceful settlement by imposing drastic tariffs and trying to practise economic black and tannery.

Senator Cummins, who presided, said that the Labour Party supported the Government because they believed the Government policy would eventually succeed. Special efforts were being made to reduce unemployment in that district through the efforts of Mr. Norton, and he added that there was no justification for the rumour that civilians would be replaced by military units on the Curragh.

"STAND UP AND SING."

MUSICAL COMEDY AT THE GAIETY THEATRE.

"A Dance a Day" is the first number sung in the musical comedy "Stand up and Sing," which was presented at the Gaiety Theatre last night, and the name of that song might perhaps more aptly have been taken as the title for the production. It is a dancing show from beginning to end, and if the artists appearing were not up to standard as singers they certainly made up for their shortcomings in that direction by the cleverness as dancers. Every member of the cast was an expert dancer, and some of them superlatively so. The play itself is rather a fast moving revue staged in two acts, each containing four scenes. These are set in an English country house, the deck of an ocean liner, fanciful settings in Cairo, and back to the Law Courts in London as the characters concerned follow the incidents connected with a concession dealing with fruit growing in Egypt. Happy go lucky Rocky Smith figures as the good fairy, who ultimately secures the concession for the rightful owner and thereby wins the hand of the magnate's daughter. The best scenes are those on a Roof Garden in Cairo and the Court, and here the audience was moved to unrestrained merriment.

Eric Fawcett was clever as the irrepressible Rocky, and he kept the piece moving in breezy style. His dancing is delightful, and he has one pretty duet in particular—"There's Always To-morrow"—sung with Carlita Ackroyd, in the part of Mary. Felice Lascelles gets through a lot of clever comedy work also in the part of the lady's maid, Ena. Another who quite captured the "house" in the roof garden scene was Nell Shepherd, who made a "hit" in the character of the Princess.

There is a fine troupe, whose dancing was as expert as their dresses were varied and becoming. Indeed, a notable feature of the show is the brilliance of its staging and dressing.

COLLEGE THEOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

In a paper on Erastianism, read before the College Theological Society last night, Mr J. J. A. Hodgins, B.A., drew a distinction between Erastianism proper—the view that the power to excommunicate is not that of the Church, but of the magistrate—and Erastianism in its modern sense—that the Church is subservient to the State, or the supremacy of civil magistrates in religion. The essayist traced the relationship of the Church in the State in the Jewish dispensation, Roman Empire, and in modern States since the Reformation. With this historical background he dealt with the life and writings and arguments of Erastus, and the controversy in which he was involved. He traced out the effect of such opinions in the Church of England and the Church of Ireland to the time of its Disestablishment. He quoted extracts from documents of the Presbyterian Church in Scotland, which has successfully resisted the encroachment by the civil authority, to explain its relation to the State. The writer also dealt with the views of the Roman Church on the relation of the Church and the State, and stressed that its view of the independence of Church and State was the nearest in its theoretical expression to his conception of the ideal relationship.

CEREMONY AT STORMONT.

TO-DAY'S OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

THE KING'S SPEECH.

FULL State ceremonial will accompany the opening of the Northern Parliament's first session in the new Parliament House at Stormont to-day. Actually it will be the opening of the fifth session of the third Parliament of Northern Ireland.

The Governor, the Duke of Abercorn, attended by Sir Dawson Bates, D.L., M.P., Minister for Home Affairs, will leave Government House, Hillsborough, at 11 o'clock, with his suite, and drive to the Parliament House. The Duchess of Abercorn, attended by Captain H. de C. Martelli, M.C., will leave first, the route through Belfast being: Lisburn road, Donegall square, West, Chichester street, Albert Bridge road and Upper Newtownards road. The Governor will reach the main gates of Parliament Building about 11.45, and a procession will be performed which will proceed via the Processional road to the east, or Senate side, of the Houses of Parliament. The Governor will be received by Major-General E. S. Girdwood, C.B., C.M.G., G.O.C., Northern Ireland District; Lieutenant-Commander A. H. S. Casswell, D.S.O., R.N.; Captain the Earl of Kilmorey, R.N.V.R.; Lieutenant-Colonel W. E. Rothwell, D.S.O.

GUARD OF HONOUR.

The guard of honour, mounted in the grounds of the Houses of Parliament, will be under the command of Captain H. G. G. Stewart, and will be supplied by the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, and the band of the same regiment will be in attendance.

After inspecting the guard of honour, the Governor will be received by the Speaker of the Senate (Viscount Bangor, O.B.E.) and by His Majesty's Lieutenants of the Counties and County Boroughs of Northern Ireland, and conducted to the robing-room, and subsequently to the Senate Chamber.

Here the ceremonial will follow closely that of the opening of a new session of Parliament at Westminster. The Duchess of Abercorn will sit beside the Governor in the Senate.

The members of the House of Commons will be summoned to the Senate Chamber by Black Rod (Major T. Dalby Hackett, D.S.O.). Black Rod, when he reaches the Commons Chamber, will knock three times on the door, but will not be admitted until he has been announced, and the Speaker, on behalf of the Commons, gives his assent. The Commons will respond to the invitation conveyed by Black Rod, and proceed to the Senate Chamber, with the Speaker (the Right Hon. H. G. H. Mulholland) and the Prime Minister (Viscount Craigavon) heading the procession, after the Sergeant-at-Arms and Black Rod. The King's Speech will be read by the Governor, and the members of the House of Commons will proceed back to the Commons Chamber, where the Speaker will again read the King's Speech.

ORDERS.

The House will then proceed to adopt certain sessional orders relating to the precincts of Parliament, and giving directions to the police to allow no crowds to assemble in the vicinity that would hinder the approach of members or the interruption of public business. Subsequently a member will move, and another will second, a humble address in reply to His Majesty's speech from the Throne, and after the Governor leaves a similar address will be moved in the Senate.

This debate gives members an opportunity of discussing the proposals of the Government for the session, and, if they desire, to move amendments regretting the omission of other matters in which they are particularly interested. It is an opportunity which members generally take to discuss a variety of subjects, in the hope of drawing from the Government some pronouncement on these matters.

The debate upon the address is likely to occupy the remainder of the week.

In connection with the opening of the Northern Parliament's new session to-day, the Prime Minister (Viscount Craigavon) gave a dinner party at Stormont Castle last night, the guests including the members of the Government.

MEATH FARMERS' DEMANDS.

ANNUITIES PROPOSALS CRITICISED.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

NAVAN, Monday.

At a special Executive meeting of the Meath Farmers' Association held here to-day the following resolutions were adopted, and the Secretary was directed to forward copies to the Central Executive of the Farmers' and Ratepayers' Association:—

"That, as all farmers have suffered severe losses, far exceeding the amount of their annuities, in consequence of the British method of collecting the sums withheld by the Government, it is entirely unjustifiable to establish a means test which farmers must pass in order to escape pressure for immediate payment, and we demand that all farmers be treated equally.

"That this meeting declares that, so long as the British tariffs are in force, the Government of the Saorstat has no moral right to call on the farmers to pay annuities to it, and, therefore, the proposal of the Executive Council for a partial payment after June next is entirely unjust.

"That we protest against the proposal of the Government that the collection of the next two instalments should be merely postponed, and that the farmers of the Free State should ultimately be required to pay them a second time, with interest at the rate of 4½ per cent., because a moratorium of this kind has only the effect of riveting double payment on the farmers.

"That as the British tariffs on Free State agricultural products are now designed to bring into the British Exchequer a sum of five million pounds per annum, which is more than one million pounds in excess of the total land annuities paid by the farmers, including those payable under the Act of 1923; and as one million pounds per annum would be practically sufficient to meet the cost of the complete de-rating of agricultural land, we demand that as long as the tariffs on our agricultural products remain in force there shall be no further collection of rates on agricultural land."

COUNTY SALARIES.

The following was also passed unanimously:

"That all members who receive civil bills for their land annuities should notify the secretary of the organisation and send to the Minister for Lands and Fisheries a statement intimating their inability to pay.

"That all county officials with a salary of over £300, including cost-of-living bonus, be cut 50 per cent. on the amount exceeding £300, only while the depression continues, and we recommend that poor rates in general for the coming year be reduced as near as possible to pre-war level."

The following was adopted for the Trim branch:—"We ask the Executive to recommend that all members of the organisation in the Free State stand as one man against victimisation by seizures in respect of land annuities, no matter what political opinions the members may hold."

A Game of Surprises And Bruises.

"ON THE MAT" AT ROTUNDA GARDENS.

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

A LEAGUE of nations "gone native" is the best description I could give of the "all-in" wrestling matches which took place in the Rotunda Gardens, Dublin, last night. England, South Africa, New Zealand, Germany and Japan were all represented somewhere in the whirling mass of arms and legs on the "mat."

In the dim recesses of a tent, with glaring white lights over the mat, two gentlemen, Bob Silcock and Al Barnes, appeared to be settling a dispute of long standing. At first there appeared to be no particular rules, but afterwards I learned that there are a number of things that are "not done." For instance, "gouging, biting and scratching or offensive kicking" are "off," and the "flying mare with palm uppermost," of which I failed to get a satisfactory explanation, is a foul. For the benefit of anyone who wishes to understand this sport, I would add that the programme describes "all-in" wrestling as the amalgamation of the three leading styles—"Catch-as-catch-can," "Judo" (or "ju-jitsu") and "Graeco-Roman."

Mr. Silcock succeeded in tying up his South African opponent, Al, in an inextricable knot in the last round, and maintained his mysterious hold while Mr. W. N. Willis, the promoter and referee, thrust his hand into the middle of the fray and counted three. This was a "fall," and Silcock was the winner.

The announcer, having removed his leather coat and revealed his immaculate shirt front—it was cold in the tent—informed the audience that Harold Angus, of England, would meet a gentleman from New Zealand, Reg. Thorne, in a contest of four ten-minute rounds. The "unpleasantness" between these two people lasted only one and a half rounds, and was chiefly remarkable for the sudden appearance of several muscular legs waving wildly over the Press table. By the energetic work of the referee and two men, whose duty appeared to be the pushing back of competitors on to the mat, the legs were pushed away to a reasonably safe distance.

At the opening of the second round Angus arrived in Thorne's corner before his second had removed the chair, and for some moments the chair was badly in the mix-up. The referee resorted to a strange crawl on his hands and knees around the combatants before plunging his hand under the shoulders of Thorne and declaring Angus the winner.

CARL SAYS "ACH!"

Herr Carl Raginsky came from Germany to Ireland to settle a dispute of sorts with an Englishman, Bert Mansfield, so it seemed from the announcement of the combat, and he promptly started to take a lot of punishment.

"Ach," remarked Herr Raginsky cryptically as he bounced off the floor and over the ropes, only to return to the business of rolling Bert around the floor. In the third round, however, Mansfield's ear, which had been injured, gave trouble, and the referee called the fight "off."

In the ensuing interval the audience had time to consider whether it really liked the sport or not. One or two left, but others, like the showman-looking gentleman with black Stetson, fur coat, and cigar, settled themselves more comfortably in their seats.

Acrobatics by a deputation from Japan, represented by O. Tani and Poland, Leo Polduski, would be a suitable description of the next "affair," for Mr. Polduski, for some unknown reason referred to as "Suds" by the crowd, jumped right out of the ring to avoid Tani on one occasion, but promptly returned, and held the Jap on his back for the prescribed period in the second round.

The "trouble" between Jack Carroll, Ireland, and Tom Plant, of England, must be connected with the days of Cromwell, for it was undoubtedly bitter. Carroll was probably forty years of age, may be he should have known better, but he indicated his dislike of having Mr. Plant in the ring with him, and threw that gentleman into the arms of the attendants several times before making a present of him to the Press by laying him, without tenderness, on the edge of the table. The referee had a somewhat busy time in this contest, for on a number of occasions it was continued after the combatants enthusiasm carried them through the ropes, and he has probably a number of bruises for his attempts to separate them. Plant made one effort to seize Carroll's hair, but that gentleman was disappointingly bald, and a few minutes later had Plant on his back for the count.

To those who intend to see these bouts I would quote the words of the film critics on certain occasions, "Do not take the children." It is not an edifying spectacle for youth.

DUBLIN CHOCOLATE INDUSTRY.

ENTERPRISE OF MESSRS. JACOB.

Considerable developments have recently taken place in the chocolate department of Messrs. Jacob and Co.'s factory, Dublin, and on Friday a party of Pressmen spent an interesting time being conducted over the works. The firm, although their reputation was made by the manufacture of biscuits, have been also making chocolate for many years past, and this branch of their business has recently developed on an even larger scale; with the aid of wonderful new machines the factory is in a position to turn out chocolates of the best quality.

The whole process of production, from the raw material to the finished article, is being carried on at the works, and this necessitates the use of a variety of machines and the employment of a very large staff. The cocoa beans on their arrival at the factory are graded and cleaned, and then put through a series of machines which constitute the bean-roasting department. (It is in this department that extensive additions are now being made.) The beans emerge from this stage in the form of "cocoa nibs," and are given a number of other treatments before they finally become chocolate. The chocolate is stored in large blocks until it is matured, when it undergoes further treatment, and eventually leaves the factory in the form of chocolate bars or sweets.

One of the machines used in the process was specially made for Messrs. Jacob and Co., and is larger than any similar machine used in Ireland or Great Britain.

The atmosphere in the chocolate section is kept at an even temperature in summer and winter by means of a special plant, which tempers and purifies the air passing through the department.

LADY GEORGINA BUTLER'S SALE.

GOOD PRICES FOR SILVER.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Monday.

The sale of the furniture and effects of Lady Georgina Butler, which was opened to-day at her picturesque residence, Island View, Clifden, by Messrs. Battersby and Co., Dublin, attracted a large gathering, drawn from all parts of the County Galway and adjoining districts. Representatives also attended from the leading dealers in Dublin, Belfast, Cork and London. The breaking-up of Island View is the cause of much regret to Lady Butler, as well as to the people of the district.

To-day's sale embraced a valuable collection of china, glass, Sheffield plated ware and silver of the Georgian period. Amongst the most noteworthy items disposed of were a silver soup tureen and stand, late Georgian period, weighing 112 ounces, which fetched £32; Georgian silver fetched up to 10s. an ounce; King's pattern table service realised 3s 6d. to 4s. per ounce; a pair of Sheffield plated three-light candelabra of beautiful design fetched £6 apiece, and a four-piece Victorian silver tea service sold at £21.

The furniture sales brought keen bidding. A Georgian small collarette sideboard realised 20 guineas, single Chippendale chairs fetched £5 apiece. A Sheraton corner cupboard was sold for 8 guineas, Chippendale plate and wine buckets £7 apiece, whilst a mahogany wine cabinet fetched 4 guineas.

To-morrow's sale will prove interesting. Notable among the goods to be offered will be an office chair, made from the wood of one of the battleships of the Spanish Armada, which was wrecked on the West coast of Ireland.

SWEEPSTAKE FUNDS.

ALLOCATIONS TO HOSPITALS.

BILL IN DAIL SOON.

THE bill necessary to set up the promised Commission to deal with the distribution of hospital moneys will be introduced in the Dail within the next few weeks.

This fact emerges from the report of the deputation of the Hospitals' Committee which waited on Dr. Ward, Parliamentary Secretary to the Free State Minister for Local Government and Public Health, on November 9.

The report was submitted at a special meeting of the representatives of all hospitals participating in the Irish sweepstakes, which was held in the College of Surgeons, Dublin. It stated that Sir William Taylor and several other members of the local committee addressed Dr. Ward on different points.

Dr. Ward, in reply, stated definitely that the committee might rest assured that all the moneys already accumulated for the hospitals would undoubtedly be devoted to the provision of hospital accommodation and the institutional care and treatment of the poor. They would not be devoted to any purpose other than that for which they were intended. He repudiated the suggestion that the Government ever contemplated applying the funds to any other purpose.

A SURVEY.

He further pointed out that, as he had already announced in the Dail, it was the intention of the Government to set up a new Commission for the definite purpose of carrying out what he called "a proper hospital survey." It was his intention to introduce the bill necessary to create this Commission within the next few weeks, and the Government had agreed to treat it as an urgent matter. He hoped, therefore, that the bill would become law during the present session.

Dr. Ward stated that the work of this Commission would, naturally, take a long time, and that in the meantime the dispensing of the funds already accumulated would have to be held up pending their report. He pointed out, however, to the members of the deputation, who raised the question of bank overdrafts and commitments entered into, that he had no doubt the Commission could be approached by the particular hospitals concerned, and he would undertake himself personally to advise the Commission to examine, at the earliest possible opportunity, how far the various contemplated schemes would fit into a co-ordinate system.

USE OF MONEYS.

Dr. Ward gave as his reasons for the setting up of the new Commission the anxiety on the part of the Government to ensure that in the dispensing of such huge sums of money they would be put to the best use. He, furthermore, pointed out that the Government wanted to secure that any and all hospitals participating in the Sweepstakes would of necessity have to set apart a definite proportion of their bed accommodation for the free treatment of the sick poor in order that the original intention of the legislature should be carried into effect.

In regard to the question of the accumulated funds, Dr. Ward expressed his anxiety that these funds should be employed to the very best advantage, and agreed entirely with the suggestion that the trustees should invest the moneys at their disposal pending distribution.

Sir William Taylor, on behalf of the deputation, thanked the Minister for the courteous manner in which he had received them, and expressed satisfaction with the frank manner in which Dr. Ward had dealt with the questions raised by the members of the deputation.

The following members of the Local Committee formed the deputation: — Sir William Taylor, Dr. Rowlette, Dr. Brennan, Dr. Myles Keogh, Alderman Hubbard Clark, Mrs. Maurice Cosgrave, Dr. Henry Moore, Mr. Robinson, Dr. Atkinson Stoney, and Mr. William Barrington, and they were accompanied by the Secretary, Mrs. Lanigan O'Keeffe, and Mr. McGrath.

IRISH ASSOCIATION IN MELBOURNE.

ARCHBISHOP MANNIX'S ADDRESS.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Speaking at the inaugural demonstration to-day of the Irish Association which has been formed by sympathisers with Mr. de Valera, Archbishop Mannix said that all the traditional enemies of Ireland were against Mr. de Valera, and would have them believe that Ireland was awaiting an opportunity to send Mr. de Valera into retirement, but that was far from the case.

This so-called dreamer, he continued, had proved probably the most practical man in Europe, and the strongest at Geneva. Even if Mr. de Valera passed out of office, the eternal Irish question would remain, so long as there were Fenians in Ireland.

The Senate had delayed the bill abolishing the oath, but the oath would go, and possibly the Senate also.

It was certain that Irishmen would never again swear an allegiance which they did not feel.

The darkest blot on English history was the connection with Ireland. The stain would not be wiped out till Ireland was absolutely free. The two countries had been unhappily married for one hundred years, and it had been a mixed marriage of the worst description. Ireland had now a new spirit and a new outlook.

CRICKET IN AUSTRALIA

WOODFULL OUT FOR NOTHING.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

There was a sensational start to the second innings of the Australian eleven against the Tourists here to-day. Woodfull and O'Brien opened, and, without a run on the board, the captain was caught behind the stumps by Duckworth off Larwood. This was a bad start towards the total of 125 required by the Australians to defeat the M.C.C. Details:—

LAYTON AND JOHNSTONE

What strange gift is it which enables these coloured singers to invest the most commonplace of sentimental ballads with haunting beauty? Surely, it is something more than the gentle crooning of their voices, beautiful though this is.

Layton and Johnstone, who head this week's bill at the Theatre Royal, are the supreme masters of this gift. In no other pair of music hall singers does one meet the same tenderness of expression allied with perfect harmony. Who is there to rival Layton, softly caressing the keys of his piano as he sings the melody of "The Night Shall be Filled with Music?" Yet, how much the rendering owes to the collaboration of Johnstone, with his marvellous syncopation! It is in these sentimental wisps of song that the pair are at their best, but there is another side to the performance, as they show when they break into the swinging jazz of "It's Great to be in Love."

Incidentally, they are but one turn in a consistently high-class show. Jean Florian is by no means an ordinary juggler; for, virtually disdaining to employ his hands, he operates his spheres on his head, face, ears, neck, and even his insteps, in truly remarkable fashion. Monica Warner is a soprano such as is not often encountered off the concert platform, and her rendering of Carmen's song was magnificent. Rich and Galvin are dancers who have developed the peculiar sinuous non-stop rhythm which is associated with modern step-dancing to a high pitch of perfection. Christopher and Columbus are first-rate laughter-makers, with Jack Martell and Murray and Mooney as good runners-up, and the Wallington Sisters provide a turn which is an excellent curtain-raiser.

PROBLEMS IN ALL AREAS.

GROWING NEEDS OF WORKLESS.

HUNGER MARCHES AND STRIKES.

AT the meeting of the Louth Board of Health in Dundalk yesterday afternoon Mr. Michael Connor proposed a resolution requesting the Local Government Department to permit the Board of Health to use their own discretion as to the manner in which outdoor assistance was granted.

Mr. Connor said his proposal was that the Board should have power to grant money instead of giving relief in kind, as the recipients could obtain much better value for the money than under the present system. If those people were enable to go into the open market for their supplies they could make far better bargains.

The resolution was carried.

The Chairman (Mr. T. F. McGahon) referred to protests which had recently been made against the practice indulged in by the Board of offering task labour to able-bodied men in receipt of home assistance. The practice had not been suggested or devised by the Board, but was merely the carrying out of an order from the Local Government Department received twelve or eighteen months ago. The work which had been done was not work for which men would be employed in the ordinary course of events, and consisted mainly of work which had been done in cemeteries. An old cemetery attached to the District Hospital was in a shocking state, and by the work of the men taken there it had been improved out of all knowledge. It was unfair and untrue to say that the men so employed were given hard work, or that there had been any suggestion of driving the men. Many of the men had informed the Board of Health that they preferred to do work of the kind than to take relief for nothing. If the Local Government Department changed the procedure the Board would at once discontinue the practice.

MEN ON STRIKE.

When it was intimated to them on Saturday morning that their period of employment would cease that evening till further notice a large party of County Council employés engaged on road and quarry work in Ballyhaunis for some time past immediately went on strike and marched to the residence of Mr. P. J. Waldron, the local County Councillor, before whom the grounds for their continued employment were put.

Mr. Waldron promised to put the position beore the proper authority at the meeting of the County Council that same day.

HUNGER-MARCHERS.

A hunger march by the Able-bodied Unemployed Men's Association took place at Enniscorthy yesterday, when a procession of men, headed by a pipers' band, marched to the County Home, where the County Board of Health were holding their monthly meeting. There were in the procession one hundred men who had marched from Wexford that morning, and they were joined by about the same number of Enniscorthy men. There was also a deputation of four from New Ross and from Ferns.

A number of Civic Guards were on duty in the County Home grounds and kept the entrance gate shut, admitting eight of the men to the Board's meeting.

The Chairman (Mr. M. J Jordan) pointed out that the Health Board had at the moment schemes in hand which would entail the expenditure of £200,000 in the next two years. In the meantime they proposed to get an overdraft of £2,000 to give immediate employment, and the other work would be commenced when sanction arrived.

The deputation expressed their thanks and departed to acquaint their comrades of the result of their visit.

Over 200 unemployed marched to a meeting of the Roscommon County Board of Health to demand that the building of cottages in the county be expedited. Only the leaders were admitted to the meeting.

Mr. Doran, Chairman, stated that there was no delay in the building of cottages by the Board. They had done everything possible to speed the matter up.

Over one hundred men from the Castlefin district took part in a hunger march to County Donegal Board of Health yesterday, demanding work or maintenance for the unemployed.

Mr. K. J. Brennan and Mr. E. Gallen, members of the Board, said they knew of cases where children were crying for want of bread.

Mr. Gallen (Chairman) said that the Board was doing all it could to alleviate unemployment.

The Board decided to go as far as they could to meet the demands of the unemployed.

The Rev. P. McGough, C.C., received the remains. The funeral will take place to-day.

Mr. Seán T. O'Kelly, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, yesterday received the following telegrams from Geneva:—

"Deeply regret to learn of death of Arthur Clery. Please convey sincere sympathy to relatives."—From President de Valera.

"Kindly convey my most sincere sympathy to relatives of Arthur Clery."—Senator Connolly.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Kelly have also telegraphed an expression of their sympathy to the family.

COURT TRIBUTES.

In the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. Justice Meredith said that he felt quite unable to start the business of the day without expressing his deep sorrow at the death of his colleague in the Dáil Eireann Courts, Mr. Justice Clery.

"He was," Mr. Justice Meredith said, "a great source of strength to those Courts, and would have been an ornament to any Court. He was beloved and respected by all his colleagues, and I know that he was also beloved and respected by all his brethren at the Bar."

Mr. Gavan Duffy said that the news of the death of Mr. Justice Clery came as a great shock to him.

"Every member of the Bar," he said, "who had the privilege of Mr. Justice Clery's friendship will re-echo your Lordship's words. His outstanding sincerity and character, his high traditions, and his keen human sympathy endeared him to us all, and make his death a very real loss to the Bar."

STUDENTS' SYMPATHY.

The members of the Solicitors' Apprentices' Debating Society, at their weekly meeting at the Four Courts, Dublin, yesterday passed a vote of sympathy to the relatives of the late Professor Clery.

It was regretted that students of University College, Dublin, should be deprived of the services of such a learned professor, who always had their interests at heart.

The meeting adjourned as a mark of respect.

The Bishop of Derry has appointed the Rev. J. A. Davidson, Incumbent of Edenderry, to be Rural Dean of Omagh, in place of the Rev. T. W. Benson, who has left the diocese.

The most effective tooth paste is also the softest

Some tooth pastes clean but scratch. Others are safe but not effective. Pepsodent is first in both effectiveness and safety

The Pepsodent Laboratories announce a revolutionary discovery—contained in Pepsodent Tooth Paste. It possesses three unique virtues.

1. The new cleansing and polishing material in Pepsodent stands unsurpassed in removing stained, destructive FILM.
2. The new texture is invisibly fine. As a result it imparts a higher polish to enamel—a brilliant glaze or lustre.
3. The new material is safe. This is most important of all. Safe because it's soft—yes, twice as soft—as polishing materials in common use.

Removing FILM is Pepsodent's chief duty. Today's Pepsodent performs that duty better than any tooth paste ever has before.

Fight Film

FILM is that slippery coating on your teeth. It gathers germs that may cause decay . . . absorbs stains from food and smoking and makes teeth unattractive. Removing FILM is important for beauty and health.

Get a tube of Pepsodent today. It is today's outstanding scientific tooth paste.

"I had done no work for over three years, as I was troubled with severe gastric pains in my stomach, causing sleeplessness and indigestion, but Phosferine has made me a complete new man. I had been ill so long, and now I have gained full vitality, and to-day I sleep and eat well and enjoy the most wonderful benefit from Phosferine. THE BISHOP OF CORK.

A PORTRAIT IN OILS.

Mr. Leo Whelan, R.H.A., has just finished a portrait in oils of the Right Rev. Dr. Dowse, Bishop of Cork. It is a three-quarter-length life-sized picture of Dr. Dowse in episcopal robes, seated in an arm-chair.

The artist gives full play to the character of his subject in the calm, intellectual expression. The flesh tones have been capitally handled. He has overcome the difficulty of lack of colour in the bishop's robes by introducing the doctoral purple to heighten effect in the making of a picture, while in the subdued grey blue folds of the velvet background he has conveyed a sense of harmony, despite the severe contrast of black silk against the sheer white of the large lawn sleeves. In meeting the difficulties of his problem in colours, the artist has well succeeded in his principal purpose of producing a living likeness of the Bishop of Cork.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

FAVOURITES FAIL.

FINE FINISH OF CLARAN TO WIN KENILWORTH PLATE.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

WARWICK, Monday Night.

THE weather had changed from the dreary conditions of last week when we began the three-day meeting here in bright, sunny weather, with a certain keenness in the air, but the going was terribly dead, and calculated to stop any horse who was not entirely suited to working on plough. In such conditions it was no wonder that results failed to work out in accordance with expectations and that outsiders were the winners of most of the races.

The first favourite to go down was Peace Pact in the Guy's Cliff Apprentices' Plate. Mr. Glasspool's mare, who has been covered, was beaten in pointless fashion by Stanley Wootton's three-year-old gelding, Blackette, who was in front most of the way, and beat the favourite by two lengths.

Gordon Richards' first ride of the day was on Kestrel in the Bourton Selling Plate, but this one finished in the ignominious position of last.

A CURIOUS RACE.

This was a curious race, for a hundred yards from home the gelding by Embargo out of My Pretty Maid, who had made all the running, was well in front. Then he began to hang a bit, and Lord Glanely's True Briton got up and made a dead-heat with him. Both were 100 to 6 chances.

My Pretty Maid g. was bought in for 100 gns., and True Briton, who is by Hurry On out of Rose of Devon, was sold out of Captain Hogg's stable for 120 gns.

That popular Guardsman, Brigadier-General Crawley de Crespigny, had mixed luck. His Quel Bonheur was a heavily backed favourite for the Bourton Selling Plate, a position which he entirely failed to justify. On the other hand, Straight Larch, whom he bought for 400 gns. after winning a seller at Kempton, appeared to be very little more fancied for the Leycester Nursery than he had been at Kempton.

He was allowed to start at 10 to 1, and won decisively by two lengths and three-parts of a length from Papyra and Mon Beguin after taking the lead three furlongs from home.

Candle Deek, who when known as the Christening Cup filly won a good seller at Ayr, and was bought in for 600 gns. afterwards, was favourite for this, but was beaten when they had gone half-way. Toltrugus was the worst drawn, and had nothing to do with the finish, nor had Gordon Richards' mount, Paulus, who had every chance.

BLANK DAY FOR RICHARDS.

Richards had another blank day, his best effort being on Sterling Maiden, who started favourite for the Kenilworth Plate, and after taking the lead at the distance was caught and beaten a neck by Claran, a three-year-old, in the small stable of Captain Gooch, who is making a very slow, steady progress from his grave hunting accident three years ago, when his spine was badly injured.

Some of Gordon Richards' mounts are starting at false prices. About one of them, Glow-Worm, in the Rugby Selling Plate, 5 to 2 was taken without a great deal of justification, for Lady Barbara Smith's filly could only finish fourth behind Fearnan, who was just able to resist the strong challenge of Tempt, and won by a short head after making all the running.

Fearnan, who is by Son-in-Law out of Marronne by Roi Herode, would a few years ago have had some value for the paddock, but to-day she only made 90 guineas to R. Armstrong.

Richards' mount, Sun Prince, in the last race, the Offchurch Plate, was joint favourite with Eagleray, but neither reached a place, Royal Ulster making all the running and winning by three parts of a length from the aged Tetrapet.

SELECTIONS.

The racing here to-morrow will be of no better class than it was this afternoon. The Daventry Maiden Plate may be won by MONTE COLARO; the Coventry Plate by CLAUDINE, and the Shipston Plate by EVENING GLORY.

GALTEE MORE.

CLAUDINE FANCIED.

MONTE COLARO BEST CHOICE IN DAVENTRY PLATE.

THE sport at Warwick to-day will not reach a very high standard, but the racing should be quite interesting, and backers have been set one or two difficult tasks. The Coventry Plate, a mile and a quarter event, should be well fought out, and one from whom I expect a good display is Claudine, the winner of this race last year. Her only victory this year was gained on this course in April, and she comes from a stable in form.

M. Hartigan can saddle a dangerous candidate in either Boy Painter or The Cheerful Abbot. The first-named occupied the minor place behind the dead-heaters, China King and Denbigh, for the Liverpool Autumn Cup, and he will represent the stable. Carona showed winning form in the early months of the season, but her latest displays have not been good, and there is apparently no reason for fancying her. Manner, the mount of Gordon Richards, will be well supported, and Litigation has first-class claims on recent form. Rooteye comes into the argument, but I shall take my chance with

CLAUDINE.

The day's proceedings are opened with an amateurs' event, the Avon Selling Plate, and here Mooltan, who ran in a similar race at Lingfield on Saturday, will be the mount of Mr. A. Cottrill. Break of Day and Roi des Enfers will be backed, but I shall row in with

NEWMARKET NOTES.

GUISCARD IN NICE-PACE GALLOP. SELECTIONS FOR WARWICK.

NEWMARKET, Monday Night.

A THICK mist prevailed during the early hours, but it cleared before our trainers put in an appearance.

Lord Derby's Manchester November Handicap candidate, Guiscard, has evidently shaken off his chill, as he looked bright and well when, in company with St. Andrews, Weston rode him in a nice pace gallop over a mile. Much, however, will depend on how he fares when he is given more active gallops. The Hon. George Lambton has time to give him a couple of good spins, which should bring him up to concert pitch, and the two or three days' enforced rest may not be detrimental to his chance.

Giudecca moved well in a nice spin and holds an engagement in the Farewell Handicap at Manchester, for which she should go close

Hogg's Paddington, who will be seen out for the same event, came six furlongs at a good pace, while Tea Clipper, who will run at the same fixture in the Ordsall Selling Nursery, had a similar spin with Lightning. The latter is under orders to leave in the morning for Warwick to run for the Banbury Plate, but I am afraid he has trained off.

T. R. Leader gave Yankee Clipper (C. Rhodes), with Latest Joke (Ted Leader), a nice pace mile gallop, and I shall be out of my reckoning if Yankee Clipper does not turn out to be a useful hurdler. He has the makings of a good timber-topper. He will make his début under National Hunt rules in the Surrey Hurdle at Hurst Park on Friday, and should he fail at his first attempt he is one to follow.

D. Waugh gave Hand of Glory a nice pace gallop over a mile. She has failed to get placed in either of her races this season, but she has been going well in her gallops of late, and is not unlikely to cause a surprise in the Banbury Plate at Warwick to-morrow.

After his good gallop of yesterday, Whitaker allowed Truncheon to take matters easy over five furlongs, and his connections, I understand, are very hopeful of his winning the Delamere Handicap at Manchester on Thursday.

Cannon was on the Racecourse side, and after giving Fiesole a good five furlongs spin, Suspense, Skylla and Moonlighter were given a good pace gallop over one mile. Suspense misses her engagement at Warwick to-morrow for the Saltisford Plate the following day, and Skylla may win the Badby Plate at Manchester.

We have not a very gay lot of runners at Warwick to-morrow, but may win the Avon Plate.

CAMBRIDGE BLUE

is in splendid trim and will be difficult to beat for the Daventry Maiden Plate. Carona and are well wound up for the Coventry Plate, and although the latter has not won a race this season she has run well and is a winner on this course. I give her the preference. Rock Daisy filly, Dorney colt, Clochette filly, Aniseed, Diblets and are under orders to run for the Sunrising Selling Plate, and I shall declare for the last named.

IT (next best)

Lightning and Marriage Settlement are well for the Banbury Plate, as is Sunset II., but in this company may score.

WORK AT THE CURRAGH.

THE CURRAGH, Monday.

We had a big frost overnight, and when a thaw did set in late this morning our trainers, in the main, restricted their charges to brisk cantering and healthy exercise.

BEHAN'S High Treason, Straid, Ulster Lily, Cargan, St. Ultan and Ballyorgan had long bouts of walking and trotting exercise. Mr. H. S. Gray's Some Catch left Mountjoy Lodge establishment this morning for Manchester, where he will contest the Lancashire Nursery Plate on Saturday. The colt is fit, and looks very well. Joe Canty or Joe Childs will have the mount.

COLLINS' Knight of the Mist, Trapper, Dual Personality, Silene Donard, Matons, Jorto and the remainder of the Conyngham Lodge team had good bouts of healthy exercise.

DAWSON'S Farra Star, Aughrim Boy, Shady Lane and Arab Man were given steady canters over five furlongs. Charming Prince, Defiant and others were usefully employed.

DOYLE'S Pretty Land, Reilly, Shy Lad and Royal Kirk were given a couple of brisk canters.

GILPIN'S Iridor, Fanmond, Jackelene, Clonmay, Artful Lad, Promochos and the rest of the Loughbrown team covered five furlongs at an easy pace.

HARTIGAN'S team was given long spells of healthy exercise in the home paddocks.

PARKINSON'S Moyle Lassie, Sunina, May Turn, Lucania, Prince Prosper, Liege, Cairn Lassie and Sabre covered five furlongs at a nice pace.

SLOCOCK'S La Sorciere, Pilot Ship, Lass of Rheims, Artful Twinkle, Easter Star, Jack's Luck and the rest cantered five and six furlongs.

PHŒNIX PARK CLUB RACES, 1933.

Entries for the series of ten two-year-old races to be decided at the Phœnix Park Club meetings next season close to-morrow with Mr. F. Harold Clarke, 9 Hume street, Dublin. The aggregate value of the ten races is £3,400, and a new yearling can be entered for the series for £5.

COURSING.

STRONG HARES AND FINE SPORT AT ARDBRACCAN.

(BY OUR COURSING CORRESPONDENT.)

In the Liscarton Stakes for eight all-ages at the Ardbraccan (Navan) Meeting yesterday, Mr. F. Smith had his bitch, Cosa Beaga, by Solid Man—Cosa Bana entered. Strange to say, Mr. James Martin, who purchased the dam from Mr. Smith, also nominated her, and stranger still, mother and daughter divided.

There was a large-sized company when we moved off to Bachelor's Lodge in bright, crisp weather, and from the outset hares came quickly to hand. As a matter of fact, the sport for a time was uncommonly brisk, seven rousing trials being reeled off in about ten minutes. Thereafter the hares gave more trouble, but there was an abundant stock of strong game, and the outlook for the Champion Puppy Meeting of the Union in January could not be more promising. On a couple of fields the grass was long and heavy, but it did not affect the sport, the trials, with a few exceptions, being of fine length.

The strong hares gave the puppies quite a lot of it, but there were few grueliers. Ennistymon, however, had the worst of the handicap in the Champion Stakes, running an undecided with Rascality in the first round; while in the third round it was Another Toigus, after being three lengths, he got another heavy one. The extra course told against him in the decider with Mr. Holdright's Speed of Emily, who won it rather easily, after making the odd couple of lengths. Mrs. Hanna's Hileda and Mr. Fagan's Prudent Maura showed nice puppy pace in the Knockumber Stakes, and ran their hares smartly; but each was fairly well pumped out, and a division was agreed to. Nothing at the meeting ran as smoothly as Casa Bana in the Liscarton Stakes, but the other divider, Casa Deag, handled her hares artistically.

M.C.C. BATTING COLLAPSE

NAGEL'S 8 FOR 32 : AUSTRALIAN PLAYERS FOR FIRST TEST.

IT is again up to the M.C.C. bowlers to retrieve the position lost by bad batting in the match against the Australian XI. at Melbourne yesterday. After taking their overnight score of 216 for nine to 218, the Australians, chiefly through some remarkable bowling by Lisle Nagel, who took eight wickets for 32, dismissed the M.C.C. for 60.

Thus, with all their second innings wickets in hand, the Australians need only 125 to win. Rain, however, may give the English bowlers a sporting chance to-day. It fell in torrents, and caused play to be stopped an hour before time. If it rains enough to affect the wicket, the batsmen will have to fight for every run. The pitch when damaged by rain is notorious for its stickiness, especially before lunch.

Yesterday's score was the lowest an English team has made in Australia in non-Test matches for nearly forty years. The previous lowest was in 1883, when Victoria dismissed Bligh's side for 55.

Why the M.C.C. should have collapsed so badly on a good, hard wicket is not easily explained. Apart from the bowling of Nagel, who has never bowled better, the change in the pace of the wicket, which was twenty-five per cent. faster than on Friday and Saturday, was undoubtedly a contributory cause. The English batsmen completely misjudged the pace, and their batting was feeble.

Nagel's form came as a surprise to his best friends. They never dreamt that he could run right through an M.C.C. side, even if it were not at its strongest. He has never taken so many wickets in club cricket, his best hitherto being six for 55 for Victoria against South Australia, and four for 45 against Queensland last season. Since then he has done nothing of note. Now he bowled dangerous fast-medium swingers, which had all the batsmen at sea, and his full analysis was—10 overs, 3 maidens, 32 runs, 8 wickets. Nagel is one of the giant Victorian twins, and stands 6 feet 4 inches.

Voce finished off the Australian innings by bowling Barnett with his fifth ball, which took the off stump.

THE COLLAPSE.

Wyatt again opened the M.C.C. innings with Sutcliffe, but he was soon out, snicking the fourth ball of Nagel's first over into the wicket-keeper's hands at 4. Sutcliffe was bowled middle stump in Nagel's second over, and with Leyland also clean bowled in Nagel's third over three wickets were down for 22. There was no recovering from this disastrous start. Nagel saw to that. Allen played over the second ball of his fourth over and was out l.b.w. at 30. Then Paynter, after surviving a confident appeal for l.b.w. when 8, was bowled by a swinger that took his off stump at 44. Larwood left at the same total missing one from Nagel at short-leg, where he was easily caught. At lunch Nagel had sent down 7.2 overs for 3 maidens, 21 runs and six wickets.

After Brown and Pataudi had sent up the fifty in 1 hour 21 minutes Brown was bowled. He played back, but missed the ball, which hit the off stump. This was at 55. Without an addition to the score the Nawab, who had been manfully defending his wicket, and at one period played four maidens in succession, was dismissed in the second over after the interval. He spooned a ball from Nagel up to O'Brien at short-leg and was out to a simple catch.

Thunderstorms were threatening when Duckworth came out to bat. After twice appealing unsuccessfully against the light, Duckworth was out l.b.w. to Nagel at 59—a decision with which he was evidently displeased. Slight rain was falling when Bowes came out to join Voce for the last wicket, and he was out to Oxenham, the innings closing at 60, after having lasted 1 hour 31 minutes.

Rain fell more heavily and held up play, but after three inspections of the wicket, Woodfull and O'Brien came out to begin the Australians' second innings. Lightning and rain, however, sent the players running to shelter before play had begun, and no further play was possible.

THE NAWAB LOST IN THE BUSH.

The Nawab of Pataudi and Leslie Ames had an adventurous Sunday, kangaroo hunting and shooting. Pataudi got lost in the bush. He climbed up a tree in order to find out his direction, but fell off it into a swamp. He fired two shots to attract attention, but nobody came. It was not until two hours afterwards that Ames and the rest of the party found their colleague. The party's spoils consisted of one parrot.

AUSTRALIA'S CHOSEN THIRTEEN.

The Australian Selectors have chosen thirteen players from whom they will select the Australian team to play England in the first test match, which begins on December 2nd at Sydney. The final eleven will not be chosen until the morning of the match. The thirteen are:—

W. M. Woodfull (Victoria).
D. Bradman (New South Wales).
S. J. McCabe (New South Wales).
A. F. Kippax (New South Wales).
T. W. Wall (South Australia).
W. H. Ponsford (Victoria).
J. H. Fingleton (New South Wales).
C. V. Grimmett (South Australia).
H. Ironmonger (Victoria).
L. Nagel (Victoria).
W. A. Oldfield (New South Wales).
W. J. O'Reilly (New South Wales).
V. Y. Richardson (South Australia).

There are no surprises. In forecasting the probables, few expected that Fingleton would be chosen, although he was one of Australia's probables at the beginning of the season. Ponsford's ankle injury, however, may keep him out of the team, and Fingleton is the ideal substitute to open the innings with Woodfull. The South Australian fast bowler, Wall, with his test match experience, is preferred to his rival, Nash, of Tasmania, who now plays for Victoria.

Nagel gets the reward for his brilliant bowling against the M.C.C. yesterday, but Ron Oxenham, who took five for 53 and two for 4 in this match, does not get his chance.

BRADMAN'S RECORD.

Bradman made the world's record score of 452 not out for New South Wales against Queensland in the 1929-30 season. A few years ago he was playing in rough up-country cricket. He has shattered nearly every cricket record within his compass, mainly by marvellous foot-work and keenness of eye. A natural cricketer, his style is completely his own, and it is sometimes horribly unorthodox. He toured Canada and the United States with A. A. Mailey's team, and made 3,300 runs in 33 innings for an average of 100. He is also a brilliant out-field and a useful change bowler. His record figures are:—

	Inns.	Runs.	Times not out.	Highest score.	Avge.
1927-28 (Australia).	10	416	1	134*	46.22
1928-29 (Australia).	24	1,690	6	340*	93.88
1929-30 (Australia).	16	1,586	2	452*[1]	113.28
1930 (England).....	36	2,960	6	334	98.66
1930-31 (Australia).	18	1,422	0	258	79.00
1931-32 (Australia).	13	1,403	1	299*[2]	116.91

[1] Bradman has played in nine test matches against England, scoring 1,442 runs in 15 innings for the record average of 103.00, his highest being 334 at Leeds. He has made five other three-figure innings against England, and has scored 37 centuries, including 15 of over 200.

PONSFORD'S ACHIEVEMENTS.

Ponsford (Victoria) is Woodfulls opening partner. He was the most prolific of Australian batsmen, and held the world's record with 437 against Queensland in 1927 until Don Bradman came along. He is the only batsman who has made two scores of over 400. He has also played one innings of over 300 and five of over 200, and has scored 42 centuries. Five of these were in test matches, three against England, and two against the West Indies. Has played in 13 tests against England, scoring 1,640 runs for an average of 40.43, his highest innings being 128.

C. V. Grimmet (South Australia), the googly bowler, bowls with unflagging patience all day, and is a useful bat when his side is up against it. He has played in 14 tests against England, and taken 76 wickets at 32.17 each, 2,445 runs being scored off 5,903 balls. Took 5 for 45 and 6 for 37 in his first test against England at Sydney in 1925.

H. Ironmonger (Victoria), the veteran of the side, is regarded as the best medium paced left-arm bowler in Australia. He took 20 wickets, at 13.6 each, in the first three tests against South Africa last season, but was dropped for the fourth, probably with a view to giving a younger man a chance. He was recalled, however, for the fifth, and had a big say in dismissing South Africa for 36 and 45, his figures being 5 for 6 and 6 for 18. Bowled well for Victoria last week, when the M.C.C. batsmen found it hard to score runs off him. In tests he has taken six English wickets for an average of 51.00.

L. Nagel (Victoria) jumped from comparative obscurity to fame yesterday. He is a twin brother of Vernon, who played for Victoria against the M.C.C. last week. Standing 6ft. 4ins., he is very active for his size. His accurate fast-medium bowling gained him a regular place in the Victorian team last season—his first in big cricket. His best performances prior to yesterday's was 6 for 35 against South Australia, and 4 for 45 against Queensland in the following match last season. He played against the West Indies, but was not very impressive, his five wickets in two innings costing 161 runs. Last season he took 19 wickets for 476 runs at an average of 25.05, finishing twelfth in the Australian first-class averages.

The English captain, Jardine, went fishing fifty miles away from the Melbourne ground during the week-end. When he turned up at lunch yesterday he gazed in amazement at the score board—M.C.C. 44 for 6.

BADMINTON NOTES.

DOMINANCE OF ONE FAMILY IN CLOSE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

THE Badminton Union of Ireland is to be congratulated on the success of the Close Championship tournament, which ran through last week at the Elm Park Hall. The entries in all reached a grand total of about four hundred and fifty, and this marks a most encouraging revival of interest in the tournament, which till last season had not been held for a few years owing to the want of a headquarters hall. The greatest credit is due to Miss Eileen Stewart, the honorary tournament secretary, for organisation, which was carried out in the efficient and punctual manner which marks all the work she so freely does for the game. Mr. W. S. Keatinge, the honorary referee, accomplished a task rendered difficult by the overlapping of entries in the most adroit and pleasant way, and the method which enabled him to supply an early copy of the next day's programme was a great convenience to the Press.

A BADMINTON FAMILY.

The outstanding feature of the senior championships was the dominance of the Hamilton family, to which we have long been accustomed in Irish badminton—ever since, indeed, Bud Hamilton, the father of the present generation of players, won the first Irish Open Championship thirty years ago. Last week the men's senior singles title was retained by the holder, Arthur Hamilton; the women's singles title went to his sister, Miss M. Hamilton; the men's doubles was won by W. Hamilton and N. Good; the women's doubles by the Misses M. Hamilton and D. Good, and the mixed doubles by W. Hamilton and Miss D. Good. It is interesting, as indicating the hereditary lure of badminton, to note that N. Good and Miss D. Good, who figure as winners in the doubles with W. Hamilton and Miss Hamilton, are son and daughter of T. D. and Mrs. Good, both of whom have often figured on the Irish international team and on the Irish championship roll. Mrs. Good, it may be observed, got as far as the final of the women's doubles last week with Miss N. Stoker, a daughter of F. O. Stoker, the famous lawn tennis and Rugby football player.

BROTHERS MEET IN FINAL.

In the final of the men's singles Arthur Hamilton beat his brother, Willoughby, who has three times won the Irish open singles twice captured the corresponding title in Scotland, and once at the recently established national tournament of Wales. The match last week ran to three hard games, in all of which the standard of play was maintained at the highest level, and the success of the less famous brother was fully deserved. This was, undoubtedly, the finest performance in singles of Arthur Hamilton's career; his game was accurate and varied, and he made use of the full width of the court in a manner that has seldom been a feature of his game.

Miss M. Hamilton in the final of the women's singles beat Miss N. Stoker in straight sets, and as in the semi-final she disposed of Miss D. Good, a former Irish Open champion, she fairly earned her distinction. She has made an advance as a singles player since last season, and her speed about the court was remarkable. In the men's doubles final W. Hamilton and N. Good proved altogether too strong for the Pembroke pair, L. Green and S. Cooper, and the merit of their win was emphasised by the fact that Good was handicapped by a sprained ankle, which later prevented him from playing in the inter-branch match. The Misses M. Hamilton and D. Good had an easy win over Mrs. Good and Miss N. Stoker in the final of the women's doubles, and also very easily W. Hamilton and Miss D. Good beat H. P. and Mrs. Macdougald in the final of the mixed doubles.

SOUTHERN PLAYERS' SUCCESSES.

The Junior Championships provided the Southern branch players with a great triumph, as they made a clean sweep of all the titles, F. O. South and Miss K. Hanan each winning three, while J. E. Elmes partnered South in the men's doubles, and Miss S. Moeran was the partner of Miss Hanan in the women's doubles. In addition, Elmes and Miss Moeran were the defeated finalists in the mixed doubles, and as all these players are very young it is clear that the Southern branch will soon become a powerful force in Irish badminton. Other players from the provinces who figured prominently in the Junior Championships were the Mullingar girls, the Misses L. Seery and U. Shaw, Miss Seery reaching the final of the women's singles and, with Miss Shaw, the final of the women's doubles. A. C. Orr, of the Dawson Club, reached the final of the men's singles, and put up a great fight against South. In the semi-final Orr had met W. McEachern, of the Caledonian Club, whose play impressed, but even more impressive was the play of A. G. Trapnell, who was knocked out in the semi-final round by South; while another player who promises specially well is the Longford man, F. McGaver.

On Saturday night two interprovincial matches were played, the Midland seniors being beaten by the Northern representatives by six events to five, and the Midland juniors beating the Southern team by five events to three. The failure of the Midland seniors for the fourth year in succession was disappointing, but there was the excuse of a certain amount of bad luck. The Hamilton brothers, Willoughby and Arthur, having beaten J. L. Rankin and T. H. Boyle in singles, were unable to appear as a pair against the same players, and so that match went to the Northern couple by default. This was unfortunate, but unavoidable, owing to an injury to A. Hamilton's foot. It is, therefore, quite on the cards that had they been able to play the result of the contest would have been different, but it should not be forgotten that last season, though, as this time beaten in the singles, the Northern players won the doubles.

IRISH TEAM v. WALES.

Since the close tournament and the interprovincial match the following team has been selected to represent Ireland against Wales in the international match to be played at Belfast on Friday, January 27th:—

Men—P. H. Boyle, N. Good, A. Hamilton, W. Hamilton, J. L. Rankin and J. Teuton.

Women—Misses Fleming, Hamilton and Teuton.

W. Hamilton, who has been the outstanding player in Ireland for the last few years, has for the first time been honoured by being appointed captain of the Irish team. The distinction is well merited; we congratulate him, and wish him and his team great success. N. Good is picked for an international match for the first time, though he must have been close up on several former occasions. He played for Ireland against England at Westminster a couple of years ago, substituting for W. Hamilton, who had hurt his ankle in the English championships, and making a creditable show. The other members of the side have played for Ireland before.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

LEADING COMMODITIES INCLINED TO HEAVINESS: EASY CLOSE.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Monday.

Saturday's more cheerful sentiment was not sustained on the Stock market to-day. An initial bright disposition failed to hold and the general list finished unchanged to 2 points down. Transactions were placed at 500,000 shares.

Firmness displayed at the opening remained fairly evident in the undertone early in the session, but the market soon drifted lower in very apathetic trading, and losses of major tractions to 1 point took place in a few Utilities, Rails, Steels, Farm Implements, Chemicals and Tobaccos.

The aspect of the list thereafter was very dull, but the selling which occurred was sufficient to create a soggy appearance.

The market closed easy.

The week-end surveys of the investment services stressed the war debt situation as injecting an element of uncertainty, with the possibility of a further drop in the sterling exchange and the consequent unsettlement of the commodity markets.

Du Pont de Nemours has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Monday.

Scattered liquidation in the December option caused prices to decline on the grain market to-day, while the dullness of export interest and the easier tone of the Argentine markets constituted other bearish factors. The general lack of buying power was the main features, the market backing and filling within narrow limits. Trading was of an extremely light character. Wheat declined under selling by commission houses and by professional interests. The easiness of wheat had a depressing effect on maize values. Offerings were only moderate, but the slow cash interest in new crop had an additional unsettling effect. Rye and oats were influenced by the fluctuations in other grains.

WRESTLING.

IRISHMAN'S GOOD DISPLAY.

Jack Carroll, the veteran Irish wrestler, who holds a Lonsdale belt, scored a victory under the "all-in" code at the Rotunda Gardens, Dublin, last night, over Tom Plant (England), whom he beat in the third round of a rough bout. He was too clever for his younger opponent, whom he punished severely in scissors holds.

Bert Mansfield (Scunthorpe) was more than holding his own against Carl Raginsky (Germany), when the referee stopped the fight, owing to an injury to Mansfield's ear.

Bob Silcock (Wigan), who is only eighteen, showed excellent form against Al. Barnes (South Africa), whom he wore down by his fierce attack, and beat in the third round. Details:—

Three 10-minute rounds—Bob Silcock (Wigan) beat Al. Barnes (South Africa) after 4 mins. 30 secs. of the third round.

Four 10-minute rounds—Harold Angus (England) beat Reg. Thorne (New Zealand) after 3 mins. of the third round.

Four 10-minute rounds—Carl Raginsky (Germany) beat Bert Mansfield (England). Referee stopped contest after 8 mins. of the third round.

Four 10-minute rounds—Leo Polduski (Poland) beat O. Tani (Japan) after 1½ mins. of the second round.

Four 10-minute rounds—Jack Carroll (Ireland) beat Tom Plant (England) after 2 mins. of the third round.

The condition of W. Redmond, the Epsom jockey, who fractured his skull by the fall of Mannite at Catterick Bridge Races last Wednesday, continues to show improvement.

TABLE TENNIS.

WONDERFUL PLAY BY WORLD'S CHAMPION.

THE first appearance in Dublin of G. Barna, the world's table tennis champion, attracted a big crowd to the Catholic Club last night, and Barna's displays must have been a revelation to everyone present. With teams from England, Wales and India visiting Dublin in the last two or three years, followers of the game have seen some of the most famous players, but none of them are in the same class as the Hungarian. He can not only hit winners with the greatest of ease on both forehand and backhand, but he also has a complete command of the defensive cut shot, played some yards back from the table, which enables him to return almost any smash hit to him. He can play cut shots with the greatest delicacy and has numerous variations of spin and break service. Barna has certainly brought the game to a higher level than has ever been seen before.

The programme was an attractive one, consisting of a match between Dublin and Paris, and several exhibition games in which D. Williams and B. Bhattachuryya, Welsh and Indian internationals, and some well-known Irish players, took part. Paris beat Dublin by 4 matches to 1, the home victory being gained by J. Drum over the young Frenchman, Haguenauer, who is accompanying Barna on his tour. Both C. Kemp and Drum played well against Barna, especially the former, who shows signs of becoming first-class. He was rather disappointing against Haguenauer, however, and made numerous mistakes in trying to force the pace.

The feature of the programme was the match between Barna and Haguenauer, easily the best exhibition of the game seen in Dublin. The young Frenchman revealed astonishing powers of defence and returned lightening smashes time after time. He led for a time in the third game, and only lost it after a great struggle. Results:—

G. Barna (Paris) beat C. Kemp—21-12, 21-9; beat J. Drum—21-13, 21-14.

M. Haguenauer (Paris) beat Kemp—21-16, 21-7; lost to Drum—11-21, 13-21.

Barna and Haguenauer beat Drum and Kemp—21-11, 21-18.

EXHIBITION MATCHES.

G. Barna beat M. Haguenauer—21-9, 21-12, 24-22; Barna beat D. Williams—21-11, 21-9; Haguenauer beat B. Bhattacharyya—21-18, 23-25, 21-9; Williams beat Bhattacharyya—22-20, 21-18; C. Pemberton and E. A. Ingram beat J. B. Ganly and T. G. McVeagh—21-11, 21-19.

HUNTING.

KILDARE HOUNDS.

The meet on last Saturday was at Maynooth, and after drawing the Carton, Taghadoe and Laragh Screens blank, they found in Laragh covert. This fox went away past the house to Crinstown cross-roads, over the Maynooth road, and thence through Donnettstown wood to Taghadoe covert, from which he was pushed out and ran on towards Bryanstown, but turning back was marked to ground in Donnettstown wood. Hounds opened in Colliers, which was next drawn, but it must have been a stale line and nothing came of it.

On Tuesday, the 15th, the meet was at New Abbey, where Major and Mrs. Wilkins hospitably entertained the hunt before Gilltown was drawn. A long demesne hunt took place there with hounds close behind their fox. He ran all over Captain Dixon's stud farm at New Abbey, on over Sallymount, back to Gilltown, and out again on the same ring, hounds being unlucky not to catch him in Sallymount before he was finally lost. Silliot Hill provided a fox which gave a nice hunt in a right-handed ring to Dunstown wood. After some covert hunting here he broke again and ran past Two-Mile Chapel, and was lost near some big breeding earths there. A fox found in Punchestown got into a well-known earth

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—When we have fine sunny weather at the commencement of November, there is a danger of poultry-keepers thinking we are having a postponement of winter, and they are inclined to put off winter treatment. This is a mistake; for, though the season has been comparatively mild up to the present we may expect every kind of damp and wet conditions, though we may have occasional good days. The sooner our birds are comfortably housed and well fed with winter feeding the sooner will the eggs flow out. If they do not get a night feed by artificial light they will require to have their crops packed till the late thing before going to roost. Though it is well to have them out on fine days, they should not be allowed to get wet, and during dull, damp days they are better scratching in the shed.
